PHONE LINE OPEN BETWEEN WHITE HOUSE AND CHICAGO

Constant Consultation Takes Place as Party Chiefs Work Out Convention Problems.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Charles G. Dawes was almost the only important adviser to President Hoover left in the capital today.

The President's office, however, was clearly the nerve center of the vast party machinery rumbling into action today. A telephone line was open between the executive office and the Chicago Hotel rooms where Mr. Hoover's principal aids worked out the party problems, and there was constant consultation.

DARKNESS COMING ON; SEA ROUGH

Airman Unable to Give Coherent Account of Accident—Recovering Rapidly on Atlantic Vessel.

By the Associated Press.

FOLLOWING is the story of the rescue of Stanislaus Hausner, New York-to-Warsaw flyer, radioed to the Associated Press by Capt. James William Wilson of the steamship Circe Shell, which picked him up in the Atlantic, off the coast of Portugal, Saturday:

By JAMES WILLIAM WILSON, Master of the S. S. Circe Shell, June 14.—"I'm Stanley Hausner; save my ship. With these words the Polish flyer who had drifted on the Atlantic in his wrecked airplane greeted us when we found him.

He literally fell into the lifeboat which we had lowered to fetch him, and he was helped aboard my ship in almost complete darkness. "Thanks very much, captain, I've been waiting for you for eight days," he said. Then he collapsed.

He almost missed being rescued, for the darkness was falling rapidly. It was very difficult to see, but the lookout on the Circe Shell sighted something ahead. It looked like a drifting buoy, but he could make out some peculiar markings on the top.

Plane's Tail in the Air. He picked up his long glass and trained it on the object. He saw then what he had thought was a buoy was really an airplane with its tail sticking up in the air. Right away when he had told me what he saw, I stepped to the engine room telegraph and signaled my engineer to cut the speed.

We slowed down and moved closer. We got within one mile of the derelict and then I stopped the ship. We drifted and slowly closed in.

My men, watching from the rail, were amazed to see the figure of a man which seemed to be lashed to the machine. We blew a blast on the ship's siren and the figure moved. He waved frantically. We could see now that he was not lashed down.

Right away I ordered a lifeboat away. It was manned by volunteers under my second officer. From the bridge I watched them move away. When they were about 50 feet from the airplane they hailed him and the flyer answered in English.

There was a rough sea running and it was getting worse and we were afraid the airplane might founder at any moment. But my men were able to reach it in time to take off the exhausted aviator. Almost all of my Chinese crew had gathered at the rail in the excitement to greet the unexpected flyer when he was taken aboard.

Too Exhausted to Talk. It was then 45 minutes after the first sighting and night had fallen. I endeavored to obtain a coherent statement from him as soon as he showed signs of revival. But his exhausted condition made this unfeasible.

Therefore, we contented ourselves with supplying Hausner with his immediate necessities of water and food. An examination showed only superficial cuts, bruises and sores, all external injuries and none of them serious.

At the time of my sending this radio the airman is progressing splendidly. He did not sustain any obvious internal injuries, but continues seemingly incapable of discussing his experiences.

It was amazingly fortunate we encountered him at the time we did, as by midnight the weather had turned hazy and four hours later a dense fog set in. Even when he was first sighted, the barometer was falling, the sky was overcast and visibility was decreasing.

Hausner, bound for Warsaw, left New York City June 3 and was sighted eight hours later in Nova Scotia. After that he was unreported until rescued. The vessel which picked him up is due in New Orleans in about two weeks. The ship did not salvage Hausner's plane.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION OPENS, WITH DRY STAND UNDECIDED; REPEAL FIGHT TO GO TO FLOOR

CABINET MEN WORK OUT PLANK ON PROHIBITION

Mills, Stimson, Wilbur, Doak and Hyde, Aided by James R. Garfield and Hoover Secretary.

EX-GOV. HENRY ALLEN JOINS CONFERENCE

Treasury Head and Postmaster - General Favor Wetter Declaration, With Two Others a Bit Dryer.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 14.—As the Republican National Convention was called to order this morning, leaders engaged in framing a prohibition resubmission plank awaited only word from the White House to present to the Resolutions Committee a tentative draft prepared last night.

The President's decision arrived this afternoon.

In the informal conference which drew the plank were Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Interior Roy Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, James R. Garfield, who is to head the Platform Committee; former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas, an intimate of the President's; and Walter Newton, one of his secretaries.

On leaving the conference room late last night after a protracted session, the participants declined to reveal the phraseology of the draft but it was declared today by Secretary Hyde, who sat in the conference, to be one that all except the "wild men" on both sides of the prohibition question could get together on.

Hyde said that over a score of proposals had been considered, but he believed, "I added, "that we are nearer a solution than we have ever been before."

Compromise Results. There was sharp disagreement in the conference as to the extent the plank should go in satisfying the demands of the militant wets. Secretary Mills and Postmaster General Brown stood for a wetter declaration than was finally agreed upon. Hyde and Wilbur pulled against them.

A compromise which, while not declaring for repeal as the militant wets demand, represents a substantial victory against the previous uncompromising dry stand of the party.

One of the proposals used in framing the draft was that which former Gov. Allen earlier in the day had urged upon dry leaders as an acceptable compromise. This plan contemplated a substitute amendment that would let the wet states get out from under the eighteenth amendment and would provide rigorous safeguards against the leakage of intoxicants into the states desiring to stay dry.

The administration proposal sanctions resubmission with a call to Congress to provide a substitute for the eighteenth amendment guarding the wishes of those states desiring to remain dry.

Talks With Washington. Administration leaders predicted success was just ahead after consulting the White House and spokesmen for the drys. During the morning they had communicated by telephone with President Hoover's aides in Washington and in Daniel A. Poling, head of the allied forces for enforcement, and other prohibition leaders, to inspect the tentative resubmission plank drawn up. Subsequent events indicated revision was in progress.

Reaching the Stadium from the prohibition conference room long after the convention had opened, Secretary Mills said, "I don't think a real solution will be found until the committee meets." Nevertheless, departure of Mills, with Secretary Stimson, from the prohibition party, indicated a final draft had been found subject to study by the President.

The fact that the Cabinet members have taken over the prohibition job was accepted as showing the President's confidence in them.

KEYNOTER PRAISES HOOVER; SILENT ON PROHIBITION

Senator Dickinson Credits President With Preventing Financial Panic and Keeping Social Order.

'RIGHT MAN TO DEAL WITH DEPRESSION'

Delay in Recovery Charged to Democrats; Progressive Meeting Referred to as 'Babble of Orators.'

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 14.—In true keynoting style, Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, as temporary chairman of the Republican National Convention, got the meeting under way today with a speech damning the Democrats and pointing with pride to the achievements of the Republican party and its leader, President Hoover.

He gave Mr. Hoover credit for a multitude of accomplishments, ranging from the prevention of a financial panic after the Wall Street debacle of 1929 to the recent "balancing of the budget."

He accused the Democrats of opening up a Pandora's box of troubles and even trying to bring on the country the evil of civil war.

The gist of it all was that the Republicans throughout the depression had been actuated by patriotism alone and the Democrats by partisanship of the vilest sort.

The speech contained no word on the issue that overshadowed all others in the minds of delegates—prohibition. One wouldn't have known from Dickinson that there was such a problem before the country. The failure of the keynoter to speak on the issue in a convention about to go down or wet was more significant than anything he said.

As he spoke, party leaders were still trying to evolve a plank that would put the party on the wet side without losing the votes of the drys. While he talked of the depression and the greatness of Mr. Hoover and the economic and other sins of the Democrats, the platform makers were thinking of handclapping ensued, but the speaker waited expectantly, and finally the crowd took up the cheer, the band helping. It was the usual keynote speech—all Republicans are heroes and all Democrats are villains. Two weeks hence, on the same platform, it will be reversed, and all Democrats will be patriots.

Dickinson praised the value of the American dollar, but did not disclose its whereabouts. The dollar got a round of mild applause. Finder please return.

Despite his best efforts, the keynoter encountered heavy going. Before he was half through the delegate floor was a babel of conversation, with shoals of persons constantly coming and going. The galleries were slowly chiming with the aid of the loud speaker, Dickinson shouted to make himself heard. Finally Fess was compelled to intervene with a plea for order.

"Why bring that up?" whispered one delegate to another when the speaker said that twice as many persons are in jail now as when Hoover took office. Conspicuously absent from the speech was any allusion to the name of Calvin Coolidge. A wise man doesn't strike matches on a powder keg.

Convention Sidelights

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 14.—HERE they are. The interior of the stadium presents an extraordinary picture. It is a lofty elliptical hall. The gallery seats, banked high on the walls, are painted a brilliant red, and the arena floor is a red pond. Far overhead the girders are gay with the usual flags and bunting. In the Kluge lights' fierce glare, the reporters curse and pull hat brims over their eyes, and the whole scene takes on an aspect of unreality. A vast organ thunders, and Senator Fess pops up on the speaker's stand to pose with upraised arms for the photographers. He looks like a marionette.

FESS, opening the convention, pays a tribute to Lincoln. He mentions Chastain Thierry. He pays a tribute to Betty Ross and another to the flag. A group of banners are massed on the floor before him and he recites "I pledge allegiance to my flag." One of the flags bears the emblem of the Chicago Board of Trade. Mayor Cermak describes the attractions of Chicago, and is followed by Bishop Freeman, who asks Providence to "save us from violence."

Early in his keynote speech Senator Dickinson likened President Hoover to Lincoln. A polite patter of handclapping ensued, but the speaker waited expectantly, and finally the crowd took up the cheer, the band helping. It was the usual keynote speech—all Republicans are heroes and all Democrats are villains. Two weeks hence, on the same platform, it will be reversed, and all Democrats will be patriots.

WETS ARRANGE FOR MINORITY REPORT

Brief First Day's Session Hears Keynote and Names Committees—Dr. Butler Submits His Proposal for Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—In its opening session today in the Chicago Stadium the Republican convention submerged its troubles for the moment, but did not forget them.

As its keynoter, Senator Dickinson of Iowa talked to restless delegates and half-filled galleries about almost everything but prohibition, a group of convention chiefs sped away across town to their hotels for new conferences on the prohibition plank.

A carefully phrased prohibition declaration, with resubmission of the issue to the people as its main theme, was put before the Republican platform workers tonight by administration representatives as the basis for settlement of the wet and dry controversy.

Demands Substitute. The plank, indorsing resubmission but demanding a substitute for the eighteenth amendment to protect dry states in event of repeal, was put forward with some dry support to stem the drive of Eastern repeal advocates.

The proposal was the result of long hours of work in Washington and here and was unofficially accepted to be acceptable to President Hoover who has thrown his influence against the outright repeal campaign.

Nevertheless there was an air of tenseness as the carefully selected members of the Resolutions Committee met late in the day with James R. Garfield, of Ohio, the chairman, to meet the prohibition issue.

Sensing a losing fight in the committee, the wets promptly resorted to pool their influence behind a common minority report demanding repeal. They will put that report before the convention for a vote and an open battle on the floor.

Convention or Legislature. A last minute objection today by some spokesmen of the prohibitionists interrupted progress with the resubmission plank but negotiations developed that the differences were not so great as to forbid ultimate agreement.

The main difference—and it was put up to the committee for settlement—rested on whether the prohibition question should be submitted to state conventions or to state legislatures. The drys demanded the latter.

Besides the prohibition controversy, the multitude of other issues facing the resolutions committee dwarfed appreciably. A bundle of hard fashioned Hoover planks on farm relief, the tariff, foreign affairs and the economic problem were smoothed over for presentation by the host of cabinet members.

The farm relief plank indorses the Farm Board, demands its retention; pledges adequate tariff for agriculture; and looks to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to underwrite the future needs of the distressed farmer.

Formalities in First Session. The convention session itself took no official note of these things. It was given over wholly to formalities, most of them so dry that delegates and spectators paid little attention. They talked and walked about as much that even the big voice of the keynoter could not pierce the continuous murmur. The convention was called to order at 11:31 a. m. daylight time and at

DAWES ELIMINATES SELF, IMPROVES CURTIS' CHANCES FOR VICE PRESIDENCY

ADMINISTRATION BACKING KANSAN FOR RENOMINATION

Leaders Are Confident He Again Will Be Hoover's Running Mate in Spite of Opposition.

SOME SUPPORT FOR COL. ROOSEVELT

Speculation as to Whether His Sister, Mrs. Longworth Will Renew Feud With Mrs. Gann.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—The self-nomination of Charles G. Dawes from the Vice Presidential picture made administration supporters more confident than ever today that he would be "Hoover and Curtis" again in 1932.

Only a few hours before the convention opened this morning, Dawes announced in Washington that he was not a candidate for the vice presidency. Dawes said: "I am not a candidate for the nomination for Vice President. No one is or will be authorized to present my name to the convention and I request my friends not to embarrass me by their support."

This came just as it seemed there was a definite movement by the opposition to Charles Curtis to center on the Chicago diplomat, financier and politician.

Leaders in the Texas delegation, unaware that Dawes had spoken, informed him as President Hoover's running mate. The Iowa delegation voted to support him as did Montana and Wisconsin. There was strong sentiment, too, in New Mexico and other groups for the blunt-spoken one-time Vice President.

Hoover Wants Curtis.

Secretary of the Treasury Mills and others close to President Hoover have let it be known since coming to Chicago that they are traveling in a straight line toward renomination of the Vice President.

Hoover wants Curtis and, in keeping with Republican tradition, those high in party circles are working to carry out his wishes.

Onlookers, however, recalling the past, did not regard the issue as entirely closed. Leaders have chosen a vice presidential candidate before only to find their followers stampeding with suddenness and finally at the mention of an appealing name.

Support for Roosevelt.

Theodore Roosevelt, Governor of the Philippines, has been suggested from time to time as an attractive second place possibility. Splice has been added to speculation over his chances by the appearance in Chicago of Dolly Curtis Gann, Curtis' sister, and Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Col. Roosevelt's sister. The differences of the two women over social precedents made interesting conversation in the past.

Mrs. Gann, official hostess for the Vice President, said categorically today that her brother deserved renomination and everybody knew it. Mrs. Longworth, widow of the late Speaker, was not for questioning, although rumors persist she is directing strategy intended to give her brother a place on the Republican ticket.

Mrs. Gann conferred with Postmaster General Ewing and Secretary of the Interior Wilbur at Republican headquarters this morning. After the conference, she said:

"My brother is certain to be renominated, from everything I can gather."

Intimation of a Bolt.

Meanwhile, one member of the President's cabinet circle privately said that after the President is nominated, he will come to my office on March 24 and tell me so and I didn't say any further than this, that and that were the case.

"No," was the reply. "No, no, with a rising inflection and increasing sarcasm for each answer. Finally Dillon asked, 'Well, he will tell you what happened in my office that day?'"

"I'll tell you what happened in my office that day," Smith repeated combatively. "I came to you and said, 'Are you ready to sign?'"

"I said yes and signed."

Previously Smith testified that he was captured March 23, by whom he thought to be a man. They took him across the river, he said, and after holding him prisoner some time, told him "Go over to Dillon's office and sign." Smith said he was taken to Dillon's office by Smith.

"You mean to say," Dillon continued, "that Col. Rundle did not read you these questions and answers?" The reference was to William E. Rundle, a lawyer, a party public and formerly Assistant Chief of Police. "I wasn't interested in Col. Rundle," Smith said. "I was interested in the guy in the corner." The man in the corner was Smith.

Then Dillon inquired why Smith had used an alias, which was the initial name of the Government's evidence, "E. W. S." "Well," said Smith, "I was dealing with these dope peddlers and I don't want them to know who I am. You know, dope peddlers are smart. Mighty smart."

G. O. P. Convention Opens; Prohibition Stand Uncertain

1:15 adjourned to 11 a. m. tomorrow.

When he mentioned the name of Herbert Hoover there was just a momentary burst of cheering. When he ran quickly over the name of Dawes, he aroused some subdued handclapping. Mostly his pronouncements of party principle were scarcely listened to at all. The block of passive faces lifted from the delegate section testified that the delegates were preoccupied with other things.

Secretaries Mills and Stimson left the convention hall after a brief visit, obviously to return to the platform conference but determinedly silent on their intentions.

The word spread around that the opposition of liberal dry leaders, cooled in early in the day, was centered principally upon the proposal to refer the prohibition issue back to state conventions, rather than to state legislatures. This is not regarded as an insurmountable obstacle.

The two big conventions committees, on platform and credentials, were called to meet late today. James R. Garfield of Ohio heads the first; Albert W. Jefferies of Omaha, Neb., the latter. They will try to report tomorrow. The platform committee probably will last all night. The convention itself plans two Wednesday sessions, one at 11 a. m. and one at 4 p. m.

As it emerged in the early morning hours from a conference extraordinary of convention chiefs, the compromise plank on the one big convention issue favors submission of a new amendment, giving the states the right to decide for themselves and promising Federal co-operation with those that want to be dry. It would not recommend that prohibition be ratified or rejected.

That everything is not entirely lovely for administration desires in this convention was amply demonstrated yesterday by the delegates from Massachusetts. William M. Butler of that State has been under serious discussion here for national chairman. But his own delegation refused on its arrival here to give him even a membership on the National Committee.

Late this afternoon, the only two of these committees which matter will begin operation. One is to accept or rewrite the platform which the leaders have already written, and which the convention can accept or rewrite later on as it chooses. The other is to hear conclusions over the seating of delegates—namely the contests which involve Hoover or anti-Hoover control of party affairs in South Carolina and Mississippi.

SCENE IN BIG STADIUM AS DAY'S SESSION BEGAN

By the Associated Press.

In spite of the great pipe organ which pealed its thunder through the high reaches of the stadium, and an American Legion band which held forth between times in a far gallery, the setting of opening day inclined to the somber. Outside the day was grim and overcast, although inside all was color.

The stadium, a new comer in a long succession of Chicago auditoriums which have made convention history, was affluted from high roof to floor rail with the usual convention trappings.

Built as a sports arena, the great oval seated easily the 1154 delegates and their alternates on its wide floor, and more than 15,000 spectators besides in the three deep terraces of its circling galleries.

Only once before since it was built has every seat been filled. That was when Jack Dempsey boxed King Levinson.

Except for its size, however, the hall presented the usual convention picture. The whole thing seemed quite familiar. The chairman's platform, raised high above the floor, jutted out from the side, not the end of the oval. A great cluster of amplifying megaphones hung poised high above the speaker's heads.

The wide strip of press seats, the camera crew's nests, and the great American flags and panels of red, white and blue, completely obscuring the arena with color all were of the well accepted pattern of modern convention fashion.

Only the father of his country was honored in this bicentennial year by having his picture on display. In familiar but length pose, Gen. Washington's likeness was repeated again and again around platform and gallery rail, clustered with American flags.

The crowd and the delegates were slow assembling. At 11 o'clock daylight time, the hour set for starting the proceedings, not half the delegation space was filled and the galleries were only beginning to show clusters of persons here and there.

On the platform, Senator Dickinson was posing for pictures, under the orders of a large battalion of photographers. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, several times voted for as the favorite of several states for the presidential nomination, stopped on his way to his platform seat to shake hands with Dickinson.

"It's good to be at a convention and have no part in it," said Lowden.

Simeon D. Fess, the party's national chairman, to whom fell the duty of calling the convention to order, appeared beside Dickinson, accompanied by a group of party officials, just at 11 o'clock. They held several whispered consultations; prohibition was on every tongue. The latest word was that President Hoover had not yet let the delegates know whether he would approve the compromise plank, proposing resubmission, drafted at the last night session of convention chiefs.

The platform became momentarily more thickly populated with notables, but no one took any steps toward the show. At 11:15, however, an assistant sergeant-at-arms appeared through the megaphones for the delegates to take their seats. Nobody did.

Nicholas Murray Butler chatted on the speakers' stand with Fess and the other Secretary Hurley of the War Department, arriving from Washington with Mrs. Hurley, was questioned about the prohibition plan, but said nothing, smiling. Another wet leader, Senator Bingham of Connecticut, bent his more than six feet of height to pass in and out under the tunnel leading from floor to platform; he was very busy coming and going.

At 11:35 Senator Fess made his first try for order, bringing down the gavel with a bang. The delegates began to file out of the aisles and it looked as though the Senator, much to his surprise, might get order without much begging.

Surprise at Beginning.

He did not compare so quiet just at 11:35. He sprang a surprise on the convention at once, producing a tableau in honor of Flag day, unlisted on the official program.

In words of patriotic appeal, the Senator glorified the Stars and Stripes. As he concluded, a Legion color guard, in white helmets, blue coats and white trousers, marched through the aisles to front and center, facing the Chairman at present arms as the band played the Star Spangled Banner.

A great American flag was unfurled suddenly to hang directly above the center of the arena. The glie club took up the words of the national anthem as the band muted its tones and the color guard marched out. Delegates and spectators rose and cheered.

Silas Strawn, just retiring as chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was the first to introduce Mayor Anton Cermak, and led it in a few words. The Mayor read his speech, declaring Chicago welcomed the visitors "with a warm heart."

In black of clerical cut, the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington, intoned the opening prayer, asking Almighty God for "freshened courage, renewed hope, a clearer vision." The whole company, on its feet, was really silent for a just moment.

It broke into a mounting hum of conversation again as George De B. Keim of New Jersey, read the dry and dusty official call of the convention. It was only a formality and Keim ran through it quickly.

Fess then presented Senator Dickinson as temporary chairman, and amid a universal handclapping the Senator was escorted to the chair by Gov. James Rolph Jr. of California, Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa and Gen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania.

Dickinson's collar began to wilt before he got far. After days of pleasant weather, the sun was beating down on the delegates. The stadium and some palm leaf fans appeared in the galleries, still only partly filled.

As Senator Dickinson neared the end of his speech, after nearly an hour of stilted reading, he put on new steam. Weaving from side to side of the platform, he pronounced the finishing sentences, another tribute to Hoover, with an emphasis that commanded attention and started the cheering again.

As he bowed himself away from the front of the platform, the delegates rose and cheered for the better part of a minute. Then they sat down again to resume their private conversations as Lafayette B. Gleason of New York, the convention secretary, read the list of temporary officers and other odds and ends of the preliminary formalities.

Organization Completed.

Viva voce and in rapid order, the temporary organization of the convention was completed by a series of motions sent to the platform by messenger read by the clerk and adopted with only a few delegates voting at all.

Under prearrangement, the motion for adoption of the platform sent in by William G. Skelly of Tulsa, Ok., that putting the Credentials Committee to work by Albert W. Jefferies of Omaha, Neb., who was made the committee chairman; that Gen. James G. Harbord of New York; that appointing the Platform Committee by James R. Garfield of Ohio, agreed on weeks ago as chairman of that group.

The first taste of the coming prohibition trouble was given the delegates by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of New York. Rising in his place in the Empire State delegation, he announced he was sending to the Platform Committee his resolution for repeal. He did not ask that it be read, and in the noise and confusion few delegates knew that the issue of the dry laws now had come officially to the notice of the convention.

The session ended a few minutes later, at 1:15, just an hour and three-quarters after it began. It will meet again at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

FAVORS AL SMITH ON THIRD TICKET IF DRY PREVAIL

Raymond Pitcairn Says 'We Should Indorse Strong Leader' If Both Parties Fail People on Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—The threat that Alfred E. Smith might be called upon to lead a third party if neither the Republican nor Democrats adopted a plan calling for prohibition repeal was raised by Raymond Pitcairn, Philadelphia anti-prohibitionist, in an address at a wet rally attended by several thousand persons in the Coliseum last night. He was one of half a dozen speakers at a meeting ending a three-day wet demonstration.

"It is no secret that the American people are fed up with both major party records, their treachery and their failure to vote in favor of repeal," Pitcairn told the wet mass meeting. "I have in mind a Progressive platform to the convention which re-nominate Coolidge at Cleveland. None of them are here, and the spectacle suffers accordingly. It is the first national convention since Watson has raised since that of 1874. He started at the age of 11."

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister and "official hostess" of Vice President Curtis, swept majestically into town yesterday, bringing 12 pieces of luggage and Mr. Gann. She announced that she would do battle for her brother if it became necessary. "I'm here to protect his interests," she told reporters. "That's my business." Mr. Gann explained that his business was to accompany Mrs. Gann. The lady of the Illinois State Committee have arranged a dinner for tonight in honor of Secretary of War Patrick Hurley, prominently mentioned as a possible candidate against Curtis for the vice-presidential nomination. One of the first acts of Mrs. Gann was to decline an invitation to the dinner.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who will present a repeal plank to the convention, told the meeting two-thirds of the Republican delegates would be in favor of the proposal "if it left to themselves."

"The minds of intelligent voters by the millions are made up," he said. "They won't stand for delay. Anyone who insists on getting in their way must be prepared to pay the penalty."

He said the prohibition question would take precedence over all other considerations at both Republican and Democratic conventions.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, head of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, said she spoke on behalf of 1,000,000 women who had signed pledges to work for repeal.

"Those 1,000,000 women are going to scan the platforms and records of candidates with an eagle eye," she said.

nomination the delegates rushed to Dawes. In 1923 the leaders wavered between former Governors Cox and Fuller of Massachusetts. Borah, in a dramatic gesture, came out for Curtis and he was chosen.

One explanation of the lack of color and excitement in this event is the absence of the Senators. Not only does the convention miss the picturesque personalities of such old guard wheelers as Watson of Indiana and Moses of New Hampshire, but there are no Progressives here to put up a fight. Borah dominated much of the proceeding at Kansas City four years ago. It was the youthful La Follette who captured the imagination of the delegates so completely that they gave him a tremendous ovation even as they snored his minority platform under. Again, it had been the white-bearded and patriarchal Henry Allen Cooper, of Wisconsin, who stood his ground against a tempest of hisses and jeers when he sought to present a Progressive platform to the convention which re-nominate Coolidge at Cleveland. None of them are here, and the spectacle suffers accordingly. It is the first national convention since Watson has raised since that of 1874. He started at the age of 11.

Another arrival was Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Mrs. Gann's late rival in the celebrated "war of precedents." Several months ago, when she was the subject of a "Don't hitch your wagon to a falling star." So "Young Teddy" elected to become the Governor of the Philippines.

ONE of the extraordinary spectacles here has been the pathetic quest of the organized dries for a leader. For days they have pined without success. Borah, implored personally and by long distance telephone, grimly reiterated his determination to remain in Washington. Fussy little Senator Fess, of whom the "Don't hitch your wagon to a falling star" was a frequent "honorarium" for delivering dry speeches, explained that he was "sympathetic" but that his position as chairman of the Republican National Committee precluded him from doing so. Others had excuses. Leader, leader, he'll be the dry leader. No takers.

A badged and ribboned delegate entered an elevator in the Congress Hotel, where the lower floors are designated by letter instead of number.

"B" he told the operator.

"B" asked the boy.

"No—D—as in depression," was the reply.

Incidentally, that seems to have been the chief mention of the subject thus far. The interest and attention of the politically-minded ladies and gentlemen assembled here appears to be completely absorbed by prohibition and the question of who will win the election. So far as can be ascertained there has not been a motion toward formulating a program for doing what lies in the power of government to do toward relieving the depression.

President's choice, as its predestined chairman.

President Hoover was given, for the most part, his own way. However, close friends of the administration because of his official position, by as representing the "people of the State."

The California delegation refused to put President Hoover's name in nomination. Ray Benjamin, the Resolutions Committee, voting instead to have C. C. Tague, former member of the Farm Bureau, represent the state on that group.

McQUILLAN TAKES STAND AND DENIES NARCOTIC SALES

"Bow Wow" Testifies He Never Saw U. S. Informer Who Says He Bought Morphine.

GIVES OCCUPATION AS GAMBLER

Government Witness Tells of Being Kidnaped and Threatened if He Did Not Sign Statement.

Trial of William McQuillan, known as "Bow-wow," continued before Federal Judge Davis today with the defense attempting to establish that the charge and proceedings are at a Government plot.

"Bow-wow," former part owner of the closed Mounds Country Club, the East Side's most elaborate gambling establishment, and now proprietor of a filling station at Thirteenth street and Cass avenue, is charged jointly with Henry Sierwaski as having participated in four sales of morphine to a Government informant.

As the first defense witness, McQuillan took the witness stand and denied that he had ever seen Earl Smith, an informer and the Government's chief witness, or Sierwaski, who also testified for the prosecution, before entering court yesterday. He said furthermore that he had not sold either of them anything at any time nor had he ever received any money from either one.

He testified he is 34 years old and a gambler. "What kind of a gambler?" he was asked. "A horse owner and operator of a casino."

Testimony then was devoted to the Mounds Club for a brief period and McQuillan explained the capitalization of the establishment was $300,000. Business, he said, was good for a time, "but very poor for the past year." The club has been closed for some time.

All last summer, McQuillan continued, he lived in a clubhouse at Fern Glen on the Meramec River, coming into the city only on Saturdays, when he was shaved and put in his hair. He said he never saw Sierwaski or Smith, who testified that the Government charges he sold morphine to Smith was last Sept. 19, the day after "Bow-wow's" birthday, and he remembers very well that there was a birthday party at the Fern Glen clubhouse and eight friends who had presented him with an elaborate cake remained overnight at the club and were there all day Sept. 18.

The cake, he added, was inscribed "Bow-wow, Happy Birthday Over 21."

Furthermore, he continued under questioning of his attorney, he was at the Fern Glen clubhouse Sept. 4 and received a telephone tip that one of his stable horses, Bunting Lee, could win at Cleveland. He bet on the horse, he said, and told his friends about the tip. The horse finished out of the money.

McQuillan was preceded to the stand by the Government's last witness on direct examination, Louis McIntosh, a narrow-chested, thin man, corroborated all of Smith's testimony about the alleged purchase of morphine from McQuillan and Sierwaski.

Testimony Yesterday.

Smith, who testified yesterday was subjected to a severe cross examination by Paul Dillon, defense attorney, who presented a statement signed by Smith denying that the informer had ever bought morphine or anything else from McQuillan or Sierwaski.

"Bow-wow," former part owner of the closed Mounds Country Club, the East Side's most elaborate gambling establishment, and now proprietor of a filling station at Thirtieth street and Cass avenue, is charged jointly with Henry Sierwaski as having participated in four sales of morphine to a Government informer.

As the first defense witness, McQuillan took the witness stand and denied that he had ever seen Earl Smith, an informer and the Government's chief witness, or Smith's wife, who also testified for the prosecution, before entering court yesterday. He said furthermore that he had not sold either morphine or morphine tablets to anyone at any time nor had he ever received any money from either one.

He testified he is 34 years old and a gambler. "What kind of a gambler?" he was asked. "A high roller owner and operator of a casino."

"Business Very Poor." Testimony then was devoted to the Mounds Club for a brief period and McQuillan explained the capitalization of the establishment was $100,000. Business, he said, was good for a time, "but very poor for the past year." The club has been closed for some time.

All last summer, McQuillan continued, he lived in a club Sept. 15, the day after "Bow-wow's" birthday, and he remembers very well that there was a birthday party at the Fern Glen clubhouse and eight friends who had presented him with an elaborate cake remained overnight at the club and were there all day Sept. 15.

The cake, he added, was inscribed, "Bow. Happy Birthday. Over 21."

Furthermore, he continued under questioning of his attorney, he was at the Fern Glen clubhouse Sept. 4 and received a telephone tip that one of his stable horses, Bunting Lad, could win at Cleveland. He bet on the horse, he said, and told his friends about the tip. The horse finished out of the money.

McQuillan was preceded to the stand by the Government's last witness on direct examination, Lonnie McIntosh, narcotic inspector, who corroborated all of Smith's testimony about the alleged purchases of morphine from McQuillan and Sierwaski.

Testimony Yesterday. Smith, who testified yesterday, was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Paul Dillon, defense attorney, who presented a statement signed by Smith denying that he had ever bought morphine or anything else from McQuillan or Sierwaski.

The statement is specific. Dillon launched into it hurriedly, asking, "Didn't you come to my office March 24 and tell me so and so, and didn't you say further that this and that was the case?"

"No," was the reply. "No, no," with a rising inflection and increasing sarcasm for each answer. Finally Dillon asked, "Well, then, will you tell me what happened at my office that day?"

"I'll tell you what happened at your office that day," Smith repeated combatively, "I came in. You asked if I was Smith. I said I was. You said, 'Are you ready to sign?' I said yes and signed."

Previously Smith testified that he was captured March 23, by two men whom he thought to be policemen. They took him across the river, he said, and after holding him prisoner some time, told him, "Go over to Dillon's office and sign any statements he has there, or else." Smith said he was taken to Dillon's office by Sierwaski.

"You mean to say," Dillon continued, "that Col. Rundle did not read these questions and your answers?"

William E. Rundle, a lawyer, notary public and formerly Assistant Chief of Police, "I wasn't interested in Col. Rundle," Smith snarled. "I was interested in the guy in the corner." The man in the corner was Sierwaski.

Then Dillon inquired why Smith had used an alias, Welch, and he initiated some of the Government's evidence, "E. W." and the "W. S."

"Well," said Smith, "I was dealing with these dope peddlers and they look you up. You know, dope peddlers are smart. Mighty smart. Like me."

Wife Gets News of Hausner's Rescue

MRS. MARTHA HAUSNER.

BRIDE of one year of the flyer, photographed at her home in Newark, N. J., Sunday, as she read the news of the rescue of her husband, Stanislaus Hausner was picked up off the coast of Portugal Saturday by a British tanker.

They ought to be lawyers.

In his direct examination, Smith related the circumstances under which he said he first bought an ounce of morphine for Narcotic Inspectors McIntosh and McDonald and shortly afterward purchased three ounces at $100 an ounce.

On Sept. 4, last, he continued, he, McDonald and McIntosh hired an automobile and drove to McQuillan's filling station where they purchased gas. There Smith told McQuillan that he wanted three more ounces, paid $300 and was told to return alone in an hour, he said.

He did return, the witness said, without McDonald, but with McIntosh still in the car.

Smith testified McQuillan said, "I told you to come alone," and that he replied, "Well, it's not other guy's car and money, I can't very well ask him to get out of his own car." He was told to return still later, and alone. He did return, Sierwaski was at the station and said the price had gone up to $110 an ounce, Smith related.

Smith and McIntosh conferred about this price and decided not to pay it.

"We were told to come back an hour later and we did," Smith continued, concerning the third transaction. "We sat in the car a few seconds and McQuillan drove up in a big car and tossed a package right into McIntosh's lap. It was the three ounces of morphine."

The payments made under the pledges will go to the Citizens' Committee for emergency unemployment relief work, and will take the place of equal amounts which the city might otherwise be asked to appropriate; thus the pledge plan will have the same practical effect as the voluntary pay cut, proposed recently, would have had.

The police pay cut, which was proposed to take effect June 1, would have saved the city, for the rest of the fiscal year, an estimated amount of $409,000. The pledge, going into effect a half-month later, are estimated to yield about $390,000 if a full response is obtained.

In his letter to the members of the department, Chief Gerk outlines the unemployment situation as one well known to the policemen. "We are pleased," he says, "to contribute our share to a cause so urgent and worthy. We do this cheerfully and voluntarily, in the conviction that we can accomplish the greatest good for the greatest number by having the Citizens' Committee, whose members serve without pay, take charge of and disburse our fund."

The plan has the approval of the new Police Board, headed by Chairman Oliver T. Remmers. The board was named last week after three resignations from the former body, two of which were due to differences of members with Gov. Caulfield over the voluntary pay cut proposal. The Governor favored the plan and the two members, former Mayor Kremsman and Daniel Bartlett, opposed it.

GANGSTER SEIZED FOR MURDER WHEN HE CALLS ON GIRL

Homer Henry De Haven Jumps Out Window of East Side Residence but Soon Surrenders.

Homer Henry De Haven, East Side gangster and former associate of the murdered Tommy Hayes, is in the St. Clair County jail at Belleville today, pending extradition to St. Louis on a charge of murder.

A warrant charging De Haven with the murder of Eddie Menken, a Cuckoo gangster, last July 1, was issued by Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon late yesterday, shortly after De Haven was arrested in East St. Louis.

He was unarmed and shoeless when taken into custody, and apparently thought, police said, that he was about to be killed. They asserted he seemed relieved to discover his captors were officers, but when they asked him whom he feared, he replied, "Oh, just the boys."

Two St. Louis police officers, three detectives, several St. Clair County deputies and the Marshal of Washington Park, an East St. Louis suburb, were in the arresting party and were equipped with tear gas, machine guns, riot guns and other instruments calculated to force De Haven to surrender.

The group, acting on information that De Haven, who has been a fugitive for several months, was to visit a girl at 2325 North Fifty-seventh street, Washington Park, surrounded the house and closed in. As they did so, a first-floor window was slammed open. De Haven jumped out, scrambled over a fence to 3224 North Fifty-seventh street, and there surrendered.

He is a former convict, having been sentenced in 1928 to a year and a day in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth for violation of the Dyer act, prohibiting interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicles.

De Haven has been sought since Peter Stevens, one-time hanger-on of the Cuckoo gang, confessed March 9 that he murdered Menken. He did so, he asserted, at the direction of Tommy Hayes, and was accompanied on the murder trip by De Haven.

Stevens, who named De Haven as a participant in other activities outside the law, including the bombing of a floor in the Buder Building, confessed participation in the attempted murder of "Crying Dave" Klegman and Harry Lander, handbook employees, last Sept. 25. All of these activities, Stevens asserted, were a result of a feud between Hayes and Herman Tipton, head of another faction of the former Cuckoo gang.

After his arrest, De Haven refused to waive extradition and return to St. Louis.

HORSE THAT TOOK MASTER TO FIRES FOR 27 YEARS DIES

Man Made Believe He Was Chief After Department Turned Him Down.

By the Associated Press. AUBURN, N. Y., June 14.—Thelma, the 37-year-old black pony that was Archie Goodwin's chief interest in life, died yesterday with her master's arm about her neck.

For 27 years Thelma and Goodwin "made believe" whenever a fire alarm sounded. When Goodwin was a youth, more than a half century ago, he was rejected as a fireman because he was only five feet two inches tall. So he got his first pony, converted a stable into a miniature fire house and has lived in it since.

The buggy he equipped with gongs, attached to a table clock. At an alarm, Thelma dashed to her place, harness was lowered, Goodwin sprang to the seat and went to the fire.

So unusual was the improvised fire station that in three years since newspapers first told of his hobby 6565 persons from 11 states have visited it to register.

NEW YORKERS PLAN TO TAKE REPEAL FIGHT TO FLOOR

State Chairman and Manhattan Leader Ready to Act If Committee Dodges Issue.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 14.—Two of the leading repeal advocates in the New York delegation to the Republican national convention, W. Kingland Macy, the State chairman and chairman of the delegation, and Samuel S. Koenig, Manhattan leader, today said New York would carry its fight for a prohibition repeal declaration to the floor if the Resolutions Committee brought in a less emphatic plan.

New York's leadership in the repeal fight has given the delegation added distinction in the convention. It was the first delegation here to commit itself to a repeal plank. Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, the New Yorker on the Resolutions Committee, has declared he did not consider himself bound to support the New York plank among the platform builders.

DROWNED IN ATTEMPT TO SWIM MERAMEC

Herbert Snyder, Police Relief Chauffeur, Loses Life at Ten Brook.

Herbert Snyder, a relief chauffeur for the Police Department, was drowned today in the Meramec River at Ten Brook, apparently when he was seized by a cramp as he was attempting to swim across the stream. The body was not recovered.

The drowning was witnessed by several persons on a nearby beach. Snyder's automobile and clothing were found near the scene. He had gone alone this morning to Ten Brook, which is in Jefferson County about 10 miles south of the city limits. He was known as a strong swimmer.

Snyder was 24 years old and resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder, at 7511 Pennsylvania avenue. He is survived also by two brothers, Emil and George Snyder, and two sisters, Margaret Snyder and Mrs. Marie Hughes.

This is the third drowning of the season in the Meramec River.

TEACHER FOR RADIO AUDITIONS DEPARTS

Pupils at St. Charles Had Been Told They Would Have Station Tryout.

Disappointed pupils of Mrs. Edward P. Cuipepper who enrolled in the school of expression she opened recently in St. Charles, have been forgetting the niceties of phonetics she taught them, in their discussions of her sudden departure.

Mrs. Cuipepper and her husband, who assisted her in the business affairs of the school, went away a week ago Saturday, leaving a note pinned on the door of their furnished apartment informing her pupils that she had been called to Kentucky by the illness of her father, but that she would return the following Tuesday or Wednesday.

Her pupils were doubly disappointed because she had promised that on Monday night of that week they would have auditions with a large St. Louis radio station, looking to possible employment by the station. When she failed to return inquiry was made at the radio station, and the pupils were informed no arrangements had been made for any such auditions.

About 25 students had enrolled since Mr. and Mrs. Cuipepper appeared in St. Charles last March. Some were children, as young as 4 years, others were students of Lindenwood College. Some paid $12.50 down, others as much as $17.50.

It was agreed that Mrs. Cuipepper was an excellent teacher and her pupils made a fine impression when they appeared before various church organizations and the Parent-Teachers' Association in recent weeks. She was a graduate of the University of Chicago, where she had majored in dramatics, she said, and her husband had a degree in mathematics, but had been unable to find a teaching position.

In preparing her charges for radio appearances Mrs. Cuipepper had them route before a dummy wood microphone in her apartment. One night the pupils were called in individually to perform before the dummy microphone for the benefit of "Mr. O'Neill of Chicago," a big radio man who was hiding in the closet. Or was he? Nobody saw him.

MEANS CONVICTED OF $104,000 THEFT FROM MRS. McLEAN

Found Guilty on Two Counts of Larceny—Sen-

Years and $2000 Fine.

REMANDED TO JAIL
PENDING NEW MOVES

Ex-Convict, Former Department of Justice Agent, Swindled Woman With Lindbergh Baby Story.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 14.—Gaston B. Means, ex-convict and former United States Department of Justice agent, was convicted by a jury last night of $104,000 larceny from Mrs. Edward B. McLean in a swindle based on the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby. The jury was out two hours.

The conviction was on two counts of larceny. The verdict on separate embezzlement indictments covering the same set of facts was not guilty.

The maximum sentence that may be imposed on each larceny count is 10 years and $2000 fine.

Means was remanded to jail by Justice James M. Proctor, who denied a defense plan for continuance of the $100,000 bond under which Means had been at liberty during the trial. Defense attorneys said they would try to release Means by habeas corpus proceedings.

They have four days to ask for a new trial, after which, or failing which, date of sentencing will be set.

Eleven men and one woman composed the jury.

The prosecution presented an extraordinary story of Means' negotiations with Mrs. McLean and of an abandoned attempt by him to interest Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, friend of the Lindberghs, in his pretended rescue plan. Means, a former United States Department of Justice agent, was convicted of larceny from Mrs. McLean of $104,000 cash for ransom and $4000 for expenses. He led Mrs. McLean to Alton, Ill., then to El Paso, Tex., in supposed negotiations with a go-between for return of the baby. Mrs. McLean at last became suspicious and demanded her money back. Means finally said he had turned the money over to a mysterious stranger on a highway near Alexandria, Va., where the man gave him a password which, he said, was to identify him as Mrs. McLean's agent.

CHICAGO, June 14.—A peace parade led by Miss Jane Addams, winner of the Nobel peace prize, was diverted from the Stadium where the Republican convention was in session today.

Fifty automobiles, Miss Addams in the first, started out West Madison street toward the convention hall, but were sent down to Monroe street, a block south of the stadium, by traffic police guarding the main thoroughfare.

Banners advocating peace were displayed and most of the passengers in the cars were women and children. The latter, exhibiting placards: "For Our Sakes."

gon, both influential members of the Ways and Means Committee, which reported adversely on the cash payment plan.

Vinson (Dem., Kentucky), the first speaker for the bill, filed the minority report supporting it from the Ways and Means Committee.

"Opponents of this measure," Vinson said, "may bring us to the brink of havoc and chaos. We deny that. We say that throughout this Congress the legislation enacted has been a superficial treatment of the disease. It is the solemn and sincere hope of its sponsors that this bill goes to the roots of the disease. We believe it is the only measure brought upon the floor that meets the fundamental basis of our troubles today."

Putnam has announced that he would amend his bill to include the plan worked out by former Senator Robert L. Owen, (Dem., Okla.), which provides that at the time the bonus currency is printed and distributed, the Treasury shall issue an equal amount of 3% per cent Government bonds. These bonds, according to the Owen plan, would be sold only when wholesale commodity prices equaled the 1926 level. In this way, Putnam's followers hope to raise the commodity price level by "controlled inflation."

Cochran, (Dem., St. Louis), an opponent of the Putnam plan, announced he would try to offer his own bonus plan as a substitute for the pending bill. Cochran would raise the funds for the bonus payment by levying beer and taxing a 2-cent-a-bottle. This plan, he

Keynote Speech in Republican Convention by Senator Dickinson

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 14.—The principal parts of the text of Senator L. J. Dickinson's keynote speech before the Republican National Convention follow:

PERHAPS it was with prophetic vision that the American people elected Herbert Hoover four years ago with the greatest popular and electoral college vote any President ever received. At any rate, he had scarcely taken the oath of his office before economic storm clouds had begun to cast their sinister shadow over the nations of the world.

His first act prevented a financial panic. Invoking the powers of the Federal Reserve Board, he prevented the catastrophe. Thus he cushioned the effects of the debacle in Wall Street which followed the greatest period of stock speculation the world had ever known.

Concern for Social Order.
With the knowledge that every major economic convulsion in the past had been attended by strikes, riots, bloodshed and death, President Hoover's next concern was to maintain social order.

To this end he summoned to the White House industrial leaders of the Nation and obtained from them a promise to maintain existing wages so long as it was possible to do so.

On the same day leaders of organized labor, sitting around the same conference table, gave their pledge that there would be no industrial war.

Had Herbert Hoover accomplished no more in this depression, he would have done more than all of the other Presidents had done in the 14 major economic dislocations which have gone before.

But our President planned a campaign to deal with the unprecedented situation in which the world found itself in the backwash of the greatest of wars.

Champion for Dole Resisted.
With financial panic averted, with industrial peace assured, the chief executive moved rapidly to mitigate unemployment distress.

However, no action of Government or of people could stay the march of the insidious enemy within our gates. Unemployment and suffering were inevitable. To relieve this to the fullest possible measure, the President set up in Washington a national unemployment committee to co-operate with the states both in finding employment and in relieving the needy.

There was a generous response to every State and with the co-operation of the people the President was able to resist rising clamors for a Federal dole.

Contrast this picture of a stable social order, the people united in aid to their less fortunate fellows, with the chaos in many countries abroad. There revolution followed revolution. Government after government fell. Battle and bloodshed became an almost every day occurrence.

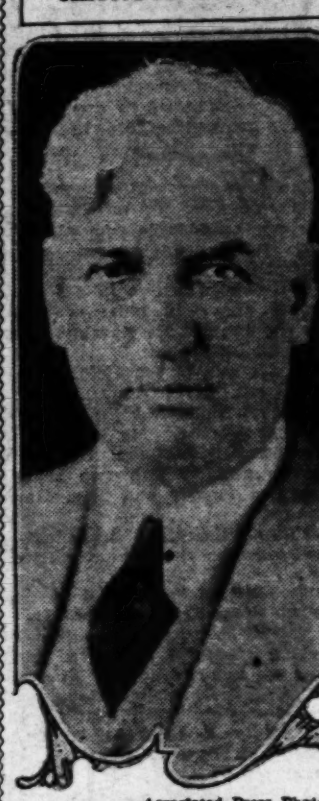

Moratorium and the R. F. C.
This was the foreign situation only a year ago. Drastic action was necessary if the international financial structure was to be preserved. Herbert Hoover took that action. He proposed and the other Powers quickly agreed to a one-year moratorium on reparations and war debts. Germany was saved from financial chaos that would have involved the entire world.

With this catastrophe averted, the President continued to wage the battle against depression on a hundred fronts in the United States.

Before Congress assembled last December, President Hoover prepared for it the most far-reaching rehabilitation and reconstruction program that has ever been designed by any leader in any country under any circumstance.

Foremost in this plan was the creation of the Reconstruction

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

SENATOR L. J. DICKINSON.

Finance Corporation with resources of two and a half billions of dollars to furnish necessary credit otherwise unattainable.

"What of the Democrats?"
As Herbert Hoover poured out his tremendous energies and abilities upon the altar of public service and the welfare of all of the people, what of the Democratic opposition?

For two long years they hampered the President at every turn. Through a highly subsidized press bureau, Democratic leaders, Democratic Senators and Democratic Congressmen sought to distort his every word, to belittle his every effort, to impugn his every motive, to frustrate his every move. Their orders were to "smear Hoover."

Upon his shoulders the awful burden of Democracy placed the responsibility for every ill at home and abroad.

As might have been expected, they overplayed their hand. With the nation threatened by its greatest economic crisis, people demanded that partisan politics be submerged in the general welfare.

Having no program of their own, they naturally and wisely followed the President who alone had a workable program.

Democrats in the House.
But after they had assisted in partially translating this plan into law, our Democratic friends were no longer able to contain their hopes of victory within the sphere of the good of the nation. On the all-essential proposition of balancing the budget, they elected to follow their own course. And with what result?

The Democrats in the House of Representatives flouted their own leadership; their tax bill was completely rewritten by the revolting Democratic majority; their economy measure was torn to shreds.

Democratic sponsors call for undue inflation of the national currency. The safety of the country requires the maintenance of the gold standard. The value of the American dollar must be maintained throughout the world.

For this moribund issue the sum total of the products of the master-minds of democracy. They proposed billions in bond issues for unnecessary and unproductive public works, presumably on the theory that when your budget is unbalanced—when your outgo exceeds your income—you can squander yourself into prosperity.

In their efforts thus to debase the dollar by fiat money and other equally unsound financial schemes, the Democrats stalked forth with the ghost in 1926.

Defense of Farm Board.
The Farm Board has been the butt of much criticism, the greater part of which is unjust. We have heard much abuse of the board's operations in stabilization of cotton and wheat by their financing of co-operatives to purchase these commodities, but we have heard very little of the fact that by their action the market in February during the crop year of 1929 and again in November of the next crop year, they stemmed the panic which had broken in agricultural prices.

The Farm Board held prices in each of these two crops above world levels to such a degree that the very moderate estimate of the amount realized by the American farmer over and above what they would have realized otherwise is between $2,000,000,000 and $3,000,000,000.

It matters little if the Government loses $150,000,000 for the savings it made to homes of farmers throughout this whole land. It was throwing a regiment into the front of the battle to lose, but saved millions.

Directly and indirectly, the Federal Government has, during the last three years, poured into the agricultural industry nearly $1,500,000,000. As I said before, grievous as his suffering may be, no farmer can deny the undeviating friendship of the Republican party.

Hawley-Smoot Tariff Wall.
Since the beginning of the economic crisis, the Democratic party has shown an utter lack of cohesion on every important issue, and on none has it been more divided than on the tariff. Its leaders have run the scale from free trade to the highest possible protection.

With falling prices and depreciated currencies overseas, there stands just one bulwark for the salvation of our people. Without the rates of the Hawley-Smoot act of 1930, we would long since have been inundated by a flood of cheaply produced foreign products.

Gentlemen of the opposition cried to high heaven against some of the rates that were being written into that bill. But while they thus wailed, they were not only voluntary, but eager partners in the writing of duties for their local and State industries which in many cases even surpassed what staunch protectionist Republicans believed were necessary.

In the Senate alone 1010 votes were cast either for increases or against decreases in rates by Democrats during consideration of the last tariff measure. And the Democrats furnished the margin of votes that were necessary for final enactment of the measure.

Even more recently—in congressional consideration of the budget balancing tax bill—we have had further illustration of the avidity with which the Democrats pursue high tariff rates. They generously supported duties on copper, coal, oil and lumber. And all this after two years of the most bitter and venomous denunciation of the Hawley-Smoot act!

Today partisanship is substituted before patriotism in the employment of every effort toward the restoration of normal conditions. And there can be no more dependable means to this end than the re-election of Herbert Hoover as President of the United States.

vented a financial panic, said Dickinson, he turned his attention to keeping social order, and to this end he got from industrial leaders a pledge to maintain existing wages so far as possible, and from labor leaders a pledge against industrial disturbances.

"Had Herbert Hoover accomplished no more in this depression," said Dickinson, "he would have done more than all the other Presidents had done in the 13 major economic dislocations which have gone before."

But the President did a great deal more, he said, and the roll of his achievements as called by the speaker was very long. He moved to "mitigate" unemployment distress, he speeded up construction work both public and private. He set up a national unemployment committee. He reorganized the Federal Employment Service in the Department of Labor, and through it "jobs were found for thousands upon thousands of men."

Without qualification, he praised the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930. If it had not been passed, said Dickinson, the nation would long since have been "inundated by a flood of cheaply produced foreign products."

"As serious as our plight is," he said, "it is not one-half as serious as it would have been under any policy save that of protection." He recounted with glee that the Democrats, notwithstanding their "hymn of hate" against the tariff, had "overplayed their hand." But "delay followed delay in the enactment of the budget balancing legislation and it was only by the most insistent pressure exerted through the White House by an aroused people that this legislation finally reached completed form."

Warning to his way, Dickinson tore into the Democrats as a party of obstructionists. Only by a "relentless fight" had it been possible for the President to write his record of "brilliant achievements."

Though he praised the campaign, Dickinson had caught to "smear Hoover," and it was not till they had "overplayed their hand" that they were forced into a grudging measure of co-operation with the President. Then they began to follow the President because they thought it good policy to do so, but later they went back to their obstructionist ways and began again to hamstring the President.

He accused them of bringing forward a "pork-barrel" program of public works and of seeking to debase the dollar by an issue of fiat money. Against this scheme the Republican party stood like a rock for "sound money."

Turning his fire against "radicalism," Dickinson branded the progressive conference of last summer, attended by members of both parties, as "a babble of excited orators now lost and forgotten." He was happy to say that most of the advocates of "ruinous fiscal policies" came from other than the Republican ranks.

He said that the Republican party was deeply concerned as it always had been concerned to promote the welfare of the farmer. Democratic policies had left the farmer unprotected. Republican policies had aided him in every possible way.

The speaker took a good part of his time in detailing all the many beneficent things the Republican party had done for the farmer. Summing up, he said that in the last three years the Federal Government, directly and indirectly, had poured into the agricultural industry nearly $1,500,000,000.

Thanks to the protection accorded their products by the Republican party, the American producers of wheat, cotton, cattle and wool "and other products of our fields" had been saved from utter prostration.

Dickinson predicted that, under the stimulus of orderly marketing, adequate tariff protection and cheaper transportation—the three main objectives of the Republican farm-aid program—the farming industry would "ultimately" be restored to prosperity, and enabled to "make its full contribution to the growth and wealth of the nation."

Though he praised the campaign, Dickinson had caught to "smear Hoover," and it was not till they had "overplayed their hand" that they were forced into a grudging measure of co-operation with the President. Then they began to follow the President because they thought it good policy to do so, but later they went back to their obstructionist ways and began again to hamstring the President.

He accused them of bringing forward a "pork-barrel" program of public works and of seeking to debase the dollar by an issue of fiat money. Against this scheme the Republican party stood like a rock for "sound money."

Turning his fire against "radicalism," Dickinson branded the progressive conference of last summer, attended by members of both parties, as "a babble of excited orators now lost and forgotten." He was happy to say that most of the advocates of "ruinous fiscal policies" came from other than the Republican ranks.

He said that the Republican party was deeply concerned as it always had been concerned to promote the welfare of the farmer. Democratic policies had left the farmer unprotected. Republican policies had aided him in every possible way.

The speaker took a good part of his time in detailing all the many beneficent things the Republican party had done for the farmer. Summing up, he said that in the last three years the Federal Government, directly and indirectly, had poured into the agricultural industry nearly $1,500,000,000.

Thanks to the protection accorded their products by the Republican party, the American producers of wheat, cotton, cattle and wool "and other products of our fields" had been saved from utter prostration.

Dickinson predicted that, under the stimulus of orderly marketing, adequate tariff protection and cheaper transportation—the three main objectives of the Republican farm-aid program—the farming industry would "ultimately" be restored to prosperity, and enabled to "make its full contribution to the growth and wealth of the nation."

Without qualification, he praised the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930. If it had not been passed, said Dickinson, the nation would long since have been "inundated by a flood of cheaply produced foreign products."

"As serious as our plight is," he said, "it is not one-half as serious as it would have been under any policy save that of protection." He recounted with glee that the Democrats, notwithstanding their "hymn of hate" against the tariff, had "overplayed their hand." But "delay followed delay in the enactment of the budget balancing legislation and it was only by the most insistent pressure exerted through the White House by an aroused people that this legislation finally reached completed form."

Warning to his way, Dickinson tore into the Democrats as a party of obstructionists. Only by a "relentless fight" had it been possible for the President to write his record of "brilliant achievements."

BANKRUPTCY TRIAL OF STEINBERG & CO. ORDERED BY COURT

Federal Judge Says He Got Impression "Studied Effort for Delay" Was Being Made.

A jury trial will be held in Federal Court June 23 to determine whether the closed brokerage firm of Mark C. Steinberg & Co., is solvent or insolvent.

Judge Faris made this order today after hearing attorneys for the company and creditors argue a motion for the setting of an involuntary bankruptcy suit. "I got the impression," Judge Faris said, "that there has been a studied effort to delay a hearing in this case."

Louis Mayer, attorney representing Steinberg, objected to the Court's ruling that the hearing be held June 23. "It will do nothing but create a terrible confusion," he said, "because not only the firm but each individual partner of the firm is alleged to be insolvent."

Argues for Separate Hearings. "They should have separate hearings, in order that each may explain their own situations."

To the Court's response that he would try all the issues at one hearing, Mayer entered his exception to the ruling.

"Thus confirming my original impression," Judge Faris commented.

The discussion over the setting of a date for the hearing was begun with the filing of a motion to strike out part of the Steinberg firm's answer to a petition of involuntary bankruptcy, in which the firm requested a trial by jury.

$100 Deposit Not Posted.

Attorneys who filed the motion to strike out the request for a jury pointed out that the Steinberg firm had not posted a $100 deposit as required by a rule of court.

Attorney Mayer replied that the Steinberg firm had not deposited the money, but that their rights under the law could not be forfeited by a rule of court. Judge Faris replied dryly that perhaps the Court could use its own discretion.

"I got the impression," Judge Faris added, "largely because this answer was filed without the $100 deposit, that there has been a studied effort to delay a hearing in this case."

At this point, Attorney Clarence Trueblood, who filed the original petition in involuntary bankruptcy against Steinberg & Co., requested permission to make a statement.

"I have been accused of collusion in the filing of this suit, by other interested attorneys," Trueblood said. "The fact of the matter is, that attorneys representing Steinberg's, came to me and told me frankly that they proposed to make a complete audit of their books."

Auditors at Work.

"If that audit should indicate that the firm is insolvent, they told me they would prefer to have it liquidated in Federal Court. Auditors have been at work on the books for a month, and I am informed that it will be at least three weeks before they are finished."

Edward Tobin, attorney for an intervening creditor, said: "There is no doubt that the Steinberg company paid the filing fee for the bankruptcy suit, and dug up three creditors to do it for them, one of whom was their own porter."

"Well, gentlemen," Judge Faris interrupted, "I'm going to try this case for you. We'll have a jury here June 23." The Court's comment on Attorney Mayer's objection followed.

History of Proceedings.

The involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court, April 29, by Albert J. Silver, William A. Hellmich and Sonny R. Nelson. It was presented an hour after receivers for the firm had been appointed by Circuit Judge Hall, on petition filed by Steinberg against his eight partners under a consent agreement for liquidation. Steinberg and Thomas N. Dyart are the receivers.

The petitioning creditors in the bankruptcy case had small claims. Hellmich for printing; Silver and Nelson for money received by the firm in the last two years.

Application for an order to examine the firm's books was taken under advisement today by Judge Faris. It was filed by an intervening creditor, Ben Flahkop, president of the Progressive Hat Co., 414 North Twelfth street, who has a $1269 claim.

Text of Petition. In his petition, presented to Judge Faris, by his attorneys Samuel White and John A. Hope, Flahkop asserts:

"The alleged bankrupts (Steinberg and partners), petitioner believes, made transfer of large amounts of their assets shortly before the commencement of this action, to various intimate friends and relatives, without consideration, or for wholly inadequate consideration, all of which were in contemplation of their insolvency and bankruptcy, and with the view of concealing such assets from their creditors, and saving the same for themselves."

It is important that the examination of the books be expedited, the petition continues, "as your petitioner is informed and believes and so charges the fact to be, that the alleged bankrupts, knowing and realizing their insolvency and inability to pay their debts and that collapse of their business and bank-

PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT ON FLAG DAY; CALLS ON U. S. TO RENEW FAITH

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14. CALL for a Flag day renewal of faith by the nation was issued yesterday by President Hoover as a contribution to today's flag ceremonies.

In a statement, he said: "One hundred and fifty-five years ago the Continental Congress established the fundamental design of our flag, and Gen. Washington set it aloft as a symbol of our national unity and determination."

"It is today a symbol enormously more significant, for it stands for all that has been accomplished by our people in the century and a half of this nation's existence. That accomplishment was based on and made possible by faith, fortitude, resolution, courage and character."

"What we need to do on this Flag day, June 14, 1932, is to renew that faith, resolving that we will hand on to the next generation, unimpaired by the passing emotions of temporary distress, these national traits and the American system which they have built."

The President had been asked to review a Flag day parade and ceremony at the capital today, but he decided he should remain in his office.

ruptcy were near at hand, caused large amounts of their assets to be turned over to various creditors, well knowing that they were thereby wrongfully preferring such favorites over their other creditors."

The petition points out that books of the company are now in the hands of receivers appointed by the State Court. The firm was suspended from the New York, Chicago and St. Louis stock exchanges and from other trading organizations in which it held memberships, immediately after the company went into receivership.

At yesterday's closing prices the bond for which Mrs. Bramson states she paid $4808 was selling at $82.50. On this basis, the original $50,000, 000 issue would have a market valuation of $425,000.

BANKERS' LIABILITY IN KREUGER BOND SALE PUT TO TEST

Holder of $5000 International Match Security Sues Two Underwriting Houses.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14. — Summons were served yesterday on Lee, Higginson & Co. and the Guaranty Co. of New York, who participated in the original sale of $50,000,000 International Match Corporation bonds in this country, to see if either or both are liable for losses suffered by investors.

The action was brought by Mrs. Florence Bramson of New York City through the law firm of House, Holthusen & McCloskey. Mrs. Bramson said she purchased a $5000 par value 10-year 5 per cent convertible gold debenture bond of the International Match Corporation on Jan. 27, 1931, paying $4808. She asks that the original amount advanced be returned to her by the bankers.

The action, which will serve as a test case involving the entire $50,000,000 flotation and whether the underwriting houses can be forced to return that amount to the buyers, was instituted in the Supreme Court of New York.

At yesterday's closing prices the bond for which Mrs. Bramson states she paid $4808 was selling at $82.50. On this basis, the original $50,000, 000 issue would have a market valuation of $425,000.

PEDDLER, INJURED WHEN AUTO HIT TELEPHONE POLE, DIES

Leo McQuade Succumbs to Skull Fracture Following Accident on Route 21.

Leo McQuade, 19 years old, a peddler, 4225A Prairie avenue, died at Deaconess Hospital yesterday afternoon of a skull fracture suffered early Sunday when a rented automobile he was driving struck a parked machine and then crashed into a telephone pole.

McQuade, accompanied by another young man and two girls, was driving east in Clayton avenue at 1:30 o'clock, and at Grand View place lost control of the machine. Miss Nellie Ryan, 15, 3452A South Spring avenue, one of the passengers, also suffered a fractured skull and is at Deaconess Hospital.

SUGGESTS CHANGE OF ROUTE OF CHAIN OF ROCKS ROAD

Alderman Kuhs Makes Suggestion; Owners and City $67,000 Apart on Value of Right of Way.

Repeal of an ordinance to condemn right of way for State Highway No. 77 across the city at Chain of Rocks was considered by the Streets Committee of the Board of Aldermen at a public hearing today.

Condemnation commissioners have been considering damages for the short strip of hillside land involved, but have not reported. Owners of the land ask for $98,856, while city appraisers value it at $31,065. Alderman Kuhs, who introduced the repeal bill, says the North Shore Country Club, which owns ground to the north of the original site, is willing to sell a right of way for $5000. Should the route be changed, it is understood about 500 or 600 feet of concrete pavement on No. 77 already built in St. Louis County, up to the city limits, would have to be abandoned and a relocation made. Some city officials object to the original route chosen by the State as not only uneconomical, but wrong from the standpoint of handling traffic at the Chain of Rocks Bridgehead.

U. S. ARMS-PLAN DISCUSSED

American Representatives Confer With French Premier.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 14.—Hugh Gibson and Hugh R. Wilson, representing the United States at the disarmament conference, discussed American arms proposals today with Premier Herriot of France.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Gibson entertained Prime Minister MacDonald and his daughter, Miss Isabel; Sir John Simon, the British Foreign Secretary, and Lady Simon at luncheon.

HEAVY REGISTRATION EXPECTED THURSDAY

Many Movings to Cause Big Enrollment; Little Change in Total Likely.

Although 75,000 to 100,000 names are expected to be added to the lists of registered voters in the supplementary registration Thursday, there may be little, if any, net increase in the number of voters.

This is the forecast of Miss Emma J. Bobb, new chairman of the Election Board, an experienced observer of electoral matters. There are 282,265 voters registered now, Miss Bobb believes removals from the city and other reasons will cause as many names, or nearly as many, to be stricken from the poll lists in the forthcoming revision as will be added on Thursday.

In the comparable supplementary registration in the summer of 1928, there were 65,889 names added before revision. There was considerable interest in the 1928 primary campaign, but the primary did not involve action by the people on the keenly fought presidential race of that year. This year, Miss Bobb thinks, the country's economic plight and the issues it has raised, will cause an increased desire to participate in the primary.

Thursday's registration is for persons who have moved since registering previously, or who have come of age, or who have otherwise become eligible to vote and are not registered. If the estimate of 75,000 to 100,000 registrations proves correct, a new record of volume for a supplementary registration will be set.

Open 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

Polling places in the 670 precincts will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. Only the four judges will be on duty in each precinct, the two clerks being dropped for this occasion as an economy measure. However, the clerks have been instructed to call at the polling places between 8:45 and 9 p. m. Thursday to obtain verification books for use in their canvass for revision.

One reason for heavy registration will be the fact that the depression has forced many persons to move and many families to "double up" in their living accommodations. Proof of this condition was found in the large percentage of the 4020 precinct election officials who have moved since their services were used last.

Another reason is the fact that many large industrial concerns are urging their employees to register, so that they may have a voice in the Government. Miss Bobb said the Public Service Co. was urging its 4200 workers to register. The Chamber of Commerce is calling on its members to have their employees register.

Expects Heavy Primary Vote.

Yesterday was the last day on which persons who had moved since registering could have their names transferred on the books by visiting the Election Board's office. Their only opportunity now will be at the polls Thursday. Persons who move after Thursday and before the primary may be transferred at the office.

Miss Bobb anticipates the vote in the August primary will be unusually large because many persons ordinarily going away on vacations in that month will stay at home this year for financial reasons. She thinks the registration for the November general election may be the largest on record, exceeding the previous record of 367,215 eligible for the 1928 general election.

There will be a new four-year general registration on Sept. 26-29, in preparation for the general election. All voters will have to register again then.

INQUIRY INTO MARKET AGENCY RATES AT STOCKYARDS OPENS

Department of Agriculture Agents Hold Hearings at Broadview Hotel.

An inquiry into the reasonableness of rates charged by market agencies at National Stockyards on the East Side was begun yesterday before an examiner for the Department of Agriculture and will continue for several weeks.

The hearing, being held at the Broadview Hotel in East St. Louis, is a routine examination similar to those held recently in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Omaha and Sioux City. J. C. Brooks is presiding as examiner and J. C. Miles, solicitor for the department, is interrogating the witnesses.

Fred G. Bareis, general manager of the St. Louis National Stockyards Co., was the witness yesterday. He told of the various services provided by the company from the time an animal is received in the yards until it is sold. A voluntary reduction in the rates of commission men at the stockyards became effective June 1.

EFFORT TO AVOID NEW TAX CAUSES INDUSTRIAL GAINS

Auto, Oil and Rubber Groups Report Pickup; Assessment in Effect June 21.

NEW YORK, June 14.—With the approach of June 21, when the new Federal tax rates go into effect, some industries are reporting mild stimulation. Among these are the automobile, oil and rubber industries, and in lesser degree cosmetics and perfumes, soft drinks and other lines which fall in the luxury class.

Buying is said to be less pronounced than expected. Nevertheless, there has been some pickup, and even though this increase has been prompted by a desire to avoid prospective tax assessments, it has been a means of offsetting the usual early summer lull.

Automobile production in June will probably go as high as it did in May—around 195,000 cars—as a result of early sales impetus because of the tax. The fact that the tax will apply to cars delivered on or after June 21, regardless of whether they were bought prior to that date, has speeded delivery. The tire business also has been helped.

The oil industry is moving stocks of gasoline to retailers in larger volume than usual, so much so that some refiners have talked of marking up tank car prices by a cent a gallon. However, no such action has been taken.

GOV. ROOSEVELT PICKS ADVISERS ON WALKER CHARGES

New York Executive Selects Martin Conboy and John E. Mack to Analyze Seabury Charges.

By the Associated Press.
ALBANY, N. Y., June 14.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has named Martin Conboy, New York City attorney, and former Supreme Court Justice John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie to assist in analyzing evidence presented against Mayor James J. Walker of New York on which the ouster of the city executive is requested.

The evidence was presented by Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter legislative committee. The Governor said the lawyers would digest the record, but that the decision would be made by him alone.

Additional accusations, alleging lack of competence, have been filed against the Mayor by a group of New York Democrats headed by James E. Fingean of Brooklyn. He was an organizer of the "No Deal" party formed in the last campaign to fight a bipartisan judicial slate in Kings County.

The "No Deal" party's charges are unlike the Seabury "conclusions" which Roosevelt said, he would consider "former charges." They demand Walker's removal on five counts:

- 1.—That Mayor Walker "has, by making false statements about his stewardship, wilfully, continuously and seriously injured the public which he swore he would faithfully serve."
- 2.—That Walker "has for over six years been guilty of enormous waste and gross inefficiency."
- 3.—That he "has knowingly and wrongfully permitted and fostered city-wide inequalities of assessment."
- 4.—That he "has permitted and fostered irregularities and graft, even after having publicly admitted that they were extensive."
- 5.—That he "has neglected and mismanaged great problems of the city."

Block Replies to Seabury.
Paul Block, publisher, issued a statement last night protesting against the "wholly unwarranted inference" he said Seabury made concerning his relations with the Mayor. Reiterating that his action in opening a joint brokerage account with Walker was prompted solely by a long personal friendship, he said: "You should know that I expected and received no favors from the Mayor or city administration."

Block asserted Seabury's analysis sought "to establish, by wholly unwarranted inference, that there was some connection between that (brokerage) account and the desire on the part of a corporation in which I had an interest to sell title for use in the city subways."

"You know, as well as I, that I opened this joint account fully nine months before I had any interest in the Beyer company. You know, as well as I, that this Beyer company never manufactured for sale, nor did it sell, any tile to the city or to any subway contractor or anyone else."

He told of objecting to the company's plan to manufacture subway tile because he felt it would cause him embarrassment because of his friendship with Walker, and said he sold his entire interest in the Beyer company soon after the plan was discussed.

"If there was any doubt in your mind as to this," Block wrote, "you should have questioned me while I was on the stand rather than publicly make me the victim of unjust inferences unsupported by fact."

Surprised at This Action.
"I am surprised at this action on your part. The only explanation of this unfair insinuation must lie in an endeavor to strengthen your case against the city administration, at the expense of the reputation of one who is not involved in any way."

Conboy, named to assist Gov. Roosevelt, was chief counsel for Joseph A. Broderick during the banking superintendent's recent trial on charges growing out of the collapse of the Bank of United States. Although a New York City Democrat, he is not actively identified with Tammany Hall.

Mack, a Democratic figure of prominence in the Republican county of Dutchess, the home of the Governor, was an attorney in the Stillman divorce case.

ALDERMEN DELAY ACTION ON TAXES PENDING HEARING

Committee Postpones Decision on Sales Levy for Relief at Request of Chamber of Commerce.

Representatives of the Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorrow with the Legislation Committee of the Board of Aldermen to discuss special tax measures designed to obtain funds for relief appropriations.

Lacking sufficient funds to continue operations on the former scale, the Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment will begin tomorrow to refuse new applications for assistance. Within a month, the committee has announced, it must withdraw help from 15,000 of the 25,000 families now under care of its relief agency. Nearly $1,500,000 would be needed, the committee has estimated, to enable it to continue through the calendar year in full operation.

Chamber Asks to Be Heard. The Legislation Committee yesterday had informally approved one measure, increasing the merchant's and manufacturer's ad valorem tax from $1.25 to $1.48 for each $100 in stock when Thomas H. Rogers, representing the Chamber of Commerce, appeared and asked that action be deferred until a delegation appointed by the Chamber had an opportunity to be heard.

It is likely the proposed increase in the merchant's and manufacturer's sales tax, not yet referred to the committee, will be discussed also at tomorrow's meeting. The proposed sales tax increase is from $1 a $1000 to $1.50. This, it is estimated, would make $200,000 a year available for relief appropriations, and the increase in the ad valorem tax, $200,000.

Hearing Monday. The proposed taxes on undertakers, tobacco and other relief measures will be taken up at a public hearing Monday. Discussing the undertakers' tax yesterday, the committee agreed that it should be amended to provide for a tax ranging from $100 to $500 a year, depending upon the volume of business, instead of from $50 to $150 a year, as originally drawn.

Discussion of the proposed 30 per cent tax on retail sales of tobacco in all forms centered about the difficulty of enforcing it and the possible hardship on local merchants in the event their customers should elect to buy tobacco in the county rather than pay the city tax.

Alderman Schwartz thought the tax would be unenforceable, and pointed to the experience of Kansas City, which repealed a similar tax in 1928 after it had been in effect only a few months. Small Aid from County. Opposition to the tobacco tax called attention to the difficulty experienced by the Citizens' Committee in obtaining public funds for relief from St. Louis County. County municipalities could enact special taxes such as those proposed in St. Louis, but under their charters could not appropriate the proceeds for relief. The County Court can appropriate money for relief, but cannot levy special taxes, and has decided that general revenues are not sufficient for large appropriations. The result has been that the only appropriation received from the county has been $20,000 from the County Court, while the city has appropriated $1,300,000.

A group representing owners of commercial employment agencies called on the Legislation Committee to protest against the activities of the free employment bureau operated by the Citizens' Committee at 1806 Washington avenue. The commercial agency men said they paid city and state taxes amounting to $390 a year and felt the Citizens' Committee agency was unfair competition. The Aldermen heard them but took no action.

The Citizens' Committee employment bureau found jobs last week for 181 applicants, eight fewer than in the previous week, according to Leo McCarthy, director. Of the jobs 73 were regarded as permanent. The bureau received 182 orders from employers and filled 82 per cent of them. New applications for work totaled 2744.

Home from the dance with ruinous Stocking Runs

If she'd only save the ELASTICITY that makes stockings WEAR!

SHE could easily prevent those embarrassing runs. Other girls do. They make their stockings last twice as long by Luxing them after every wearing.

With Lux, you keep your stockings elastic—so the delicate silk threads give under strain—stretch and then spring back into shape without breaking.

Try it yourself! It takes only 2 minutes to Lux a pair of stockings. You'll agree that the easy Lux way of washing saves stocking money—makes even delicate chiffon hosiery wear.

The LUX Way to make stockings last twice as long

Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair of stockings.

2. Add lukewarm water, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Don't use too-warm water—this fades color. With Lux you use lukewarm water. No hot water needed.

Don't rub with one soap. It ruins elasticity. With Lux there's no rubbing! Even stubborn spots come out perfectly if you press a few dry Lux diamonds into the dampened spot.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali, which robs silk of its life, weakens threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.

EXPERT PUTS U. S. TAX INCREASE AT 1500 PCT.

Chamber of Commerce Man Figures Small Assessments on Small Incomes.

New Federal taxes, contained in the revenue bill, and increased Federal income tax rates, will increase fifteen-fold the Federal tax bill of the person of moderate income, according to a calculation made by M. M. Drake, research director of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

As a basis for the estimate, it is assumed that the person this year paid Federal income tax on $1000 net income, after having deducted exemptions of $3500 for a married person, and $400 for each of two children. The tax on $1000, at 1.5 per cent, with deduction of 25 per cent for earned income, was $11.25.

Next year, when the tax on this year's income will be paid, assuming the total income to be the same, the exemption for a married person will be only $2500, there will be no deduction for earned income, and the rate will be 4 per cent, making the net amount to be taxed $2000, instead of $1000, and making the tax $80 instead of $11.25.

To this $80 of income tax, in the computation, are added the new taxes and expenses imposed by the Federal revenue measure. Most of these amounts will be paid indirectly, in small sums, as a part of the purchase price of various articles. The largest item computed is $46 in added cost of miscellaneous retail purchases. This is based on the estimate that prices will be advanced generally by 2 per cent, and that the average family four spend $2300 a year in miscellaneous retail purchases.

The summary shows, for next year, the following requirements: Income taxes, $119; increased cost of miscellaneous purchases, $46; gasoline taxes, $1.50; lubricating oil taxes, $1.20; tires and accessories taxes, $5; toilet preparations tax, $3; candy and soft drinks tax $7.50; electric current tax, $1.25; telephone and telegraph taxes, $5; additional postage, $5; bank check tax, $6; admissions tax, $3.50; total, $170.95.

This total is more than 15 times the $11.25 which the same person paid this year in Federal income taxes. The computation does not include the state income tax or the city, state and school tax on real estate and personal property.

If the income is reduced and expenditures are reduced accordingly, the tax requirements would be lessened, but would still show a large increase over those made in the past.

NEGRO ON TREASURE HUNT WITH AID OF 'MONEY DETECTOR'

Policeman Discovers Him at Work and Is Told About Disclosure in Dream.

Strange noises from a yard at 522 South Garrison avenue early today attracted the attention of Patrolman Lower of the Laclede Avenue Station. Inside the yard the officer found Benjamin Fitzpatrick, 49 years old, a Negro, industriously prodding the ground with an iron rod as two other Negroes looked on.

Near the steps was a collection of articles belonging to Fitzpatrick, who identified a metal ball on the end of a string as his "money detector." He explained to the policeman his deceased wife had appeared to him in a dream at his home, 2610 Bernard street, and directed him to go to the South Garrison avenue address and dig for money she had buried in a bottle there.

$6,000,000 CHARITY BEQUEST FOUGHT IN CHICAGO SUIT

14 Cousins of Edward W. Morrison Represented in Action to Break Will.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Relatives started a court fight yesterday to prevent the bulk of Edward W. Morrison's $6,000,000 estate from going to charity.

Morrison died Dec. 14. In his will, relatives were bequeathed a total of $100,000, two women who said they were his adopted children got $5000 each, and the rest was placed in trust for construction of a home for the aged in Chicago.

Mrs. Mary Ella Fowler, one of 14 cousins, who say they are Morrison's nearest relatives, filed suit in Circuit Court to break the will. Assisting in the litigation is Attorney Robert T. Linney, Los Angeles, Cal., where several of the cousins reside.

NEGRO WOMAN GETS YEAR FOR FAKING INJURY CLAIM

Sent to Workhouse; Pleads Guilty of Trying to Deceive Public Service Co.

Rosie Mae Crenshaw, 32 years old, a Negro, was sentenced today to a year in the workhouse by Circuit Judge Pearce, in whose court she pleaded guilty of filing a false injury claim against the Public Service Co.

A warrant charging her with attempted larceny by trick had been issued less than 24 hours before by Assistant Circuit Attorney McLaughlin. McLaughlin had obtained the statements of two other Negro women that a supposed fall Rosie Crenshaw suffered on a Wellington street car in June, 1929, was planned in advance "to get some money."

Rosie Crenshaw was arrested at 312 La Beaume street last night, waived preliminary hearing this morning and was arraigned early in the afternoon. She pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of attempting to obtain money by false pretenses. A $1600 verdict she obtained in Circuit Court against the Public Service Co. is on appeal.

Do you inhale?

"Let sleeping dogs lie"

Why should smokers accept this old-fashioned notion of the cigarette trade?

BY this time you must be pretty well convinced of the fact that other cigarettes do not like to talk about inhaling.

And yet—this subject—so "untouchable" in cigarette advertising—is very close to your welfare! For you do inhale—we all do—knowingly or unknowingly, every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

"Let sleeping dogs lie" may be the cigarette trade's answer to us! But what's their answer to you? Do you inhale? Lucky Strike does not avoid this vital question. It meets the issue fairly and squarely—because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Lucky Strike's famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

$500,000 Action Result of Investigation into Magistrate's Courts in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Repercussions of Samuel Seabury's late resignation into Magistrate's courts of New York were heard today when attorneys for Police Lieutenant John Kenna and his mother, Anna, examined William T. Sterling, accountant for the Magistrate's investigation, before trial of a suit for $500,000.

Seabury, himself a defendant in the suit, acted as counsel for Sterling and clashed with Attorneys John Taylor Breen and Richard J. Mackey as the latter two sought to gain from Sterling admission that the investigators inquired into Kenna's large bank account because they thought it would be good publicity.

Kenna and his mother allege that Seabury, Sterling and two of Seabury's legal aids, Jacob Gould Schurman and George B. Levy, conspired to defame them through inferences drawn when Kenna was examined on the witness stand in February, 1931.

Sterling said that his only duties in the matter were to analyze and classify deposits made in various bank accounts by the policeman and his mother.

When Attorney Mackey sought to have Sterling tell about an alleged conference in which Seabury and his aides decided to create an "atmosphere" prior to introducing Kenna's bank accounts into evidence, Seabury shouted:

"You know perfectly well no such conference was held. I think that your saying anything like that is scandalous and indecent."

"I think it was scandalous and indecent the way this hearing was held," Mackey retorted.

HUNT FOR WITNESS DELAYS
TRIAL IN WOMAN'S MURDER

Case Against Joseph Stetson Put Off Till Monday, After Jury Is Selected.

A jury was selected today to try Joseph Stetson on a charge of first-degree murder, but the case was then continued until Monday, to give the State an opportunity to find a witness who was in a room with Lillian Cole in a house at 4159 Delmar boulevard, when she was shot to death last Aug. 10.

The witness, who said he was Jack Cole, husband of the dead woman, left immediately after the shooting, and the murder trial has been continued several times to permit the State to search for him.

His name appears in the witness list on the indictment as Roy Puckett, but when placed under bond May 1 for his appearance in court he gave the name Walter Rice.

Through an inadvertence the bond was discharged last Wednesday, when he appeared before Judge Butler in Court of Criminal Correction.

Stetson, a pipefitter, 31 years old, was named as the slayer by the Coroner's jury. Witnesses testified he shot the woman after accusing her of stealing his watch earlier in the evening.

Happy Wife Keeps Youth
Brushes Away Gray Hair

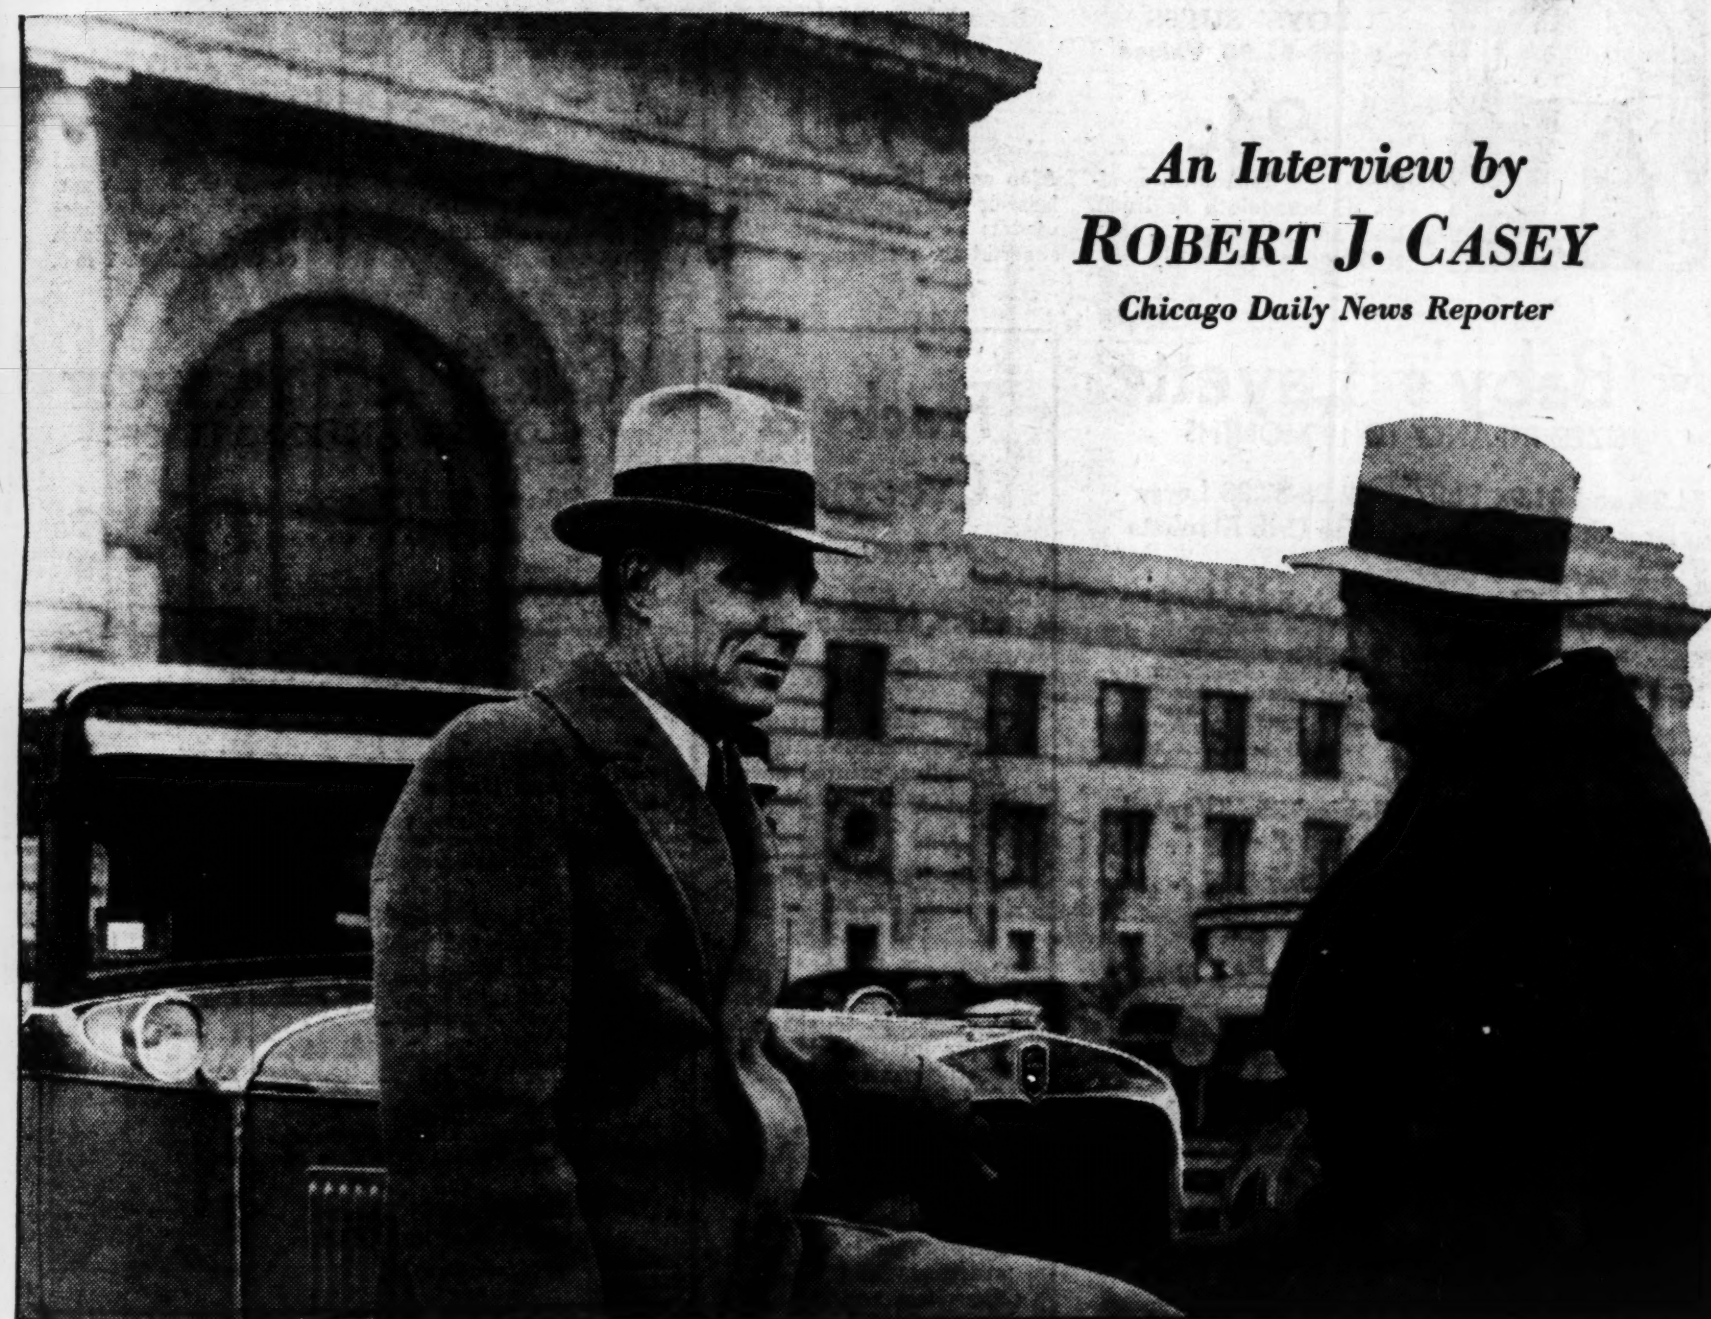

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale, flat "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess or gamble. Get a bottle of Brownatone today—only 50c. Then cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not prove it will actually give your dull, streaked, gray or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen—your money back.

"I DROVE SMACK INTO A BLIZZARD"

An Interview by ROBERT J. CASEY
Chicago Daily News Reporter

"It was 119° in the shade when I left Salina, Kansas, last summer. One week later my Nash was on top of Pike's Peak in a raging blizzard," E. J. Corcoran, master mechanic of Kansas City, tells R. J. Casey, famous Chicago News reporter. Read the story of his trip.

THERE was snow in the air and ice on the pavement and the long hill up from the Missouri bottoms seemed almost perpendicular as E. J. Corcoran, master mechanic for the Kansas City Light and Power Company, turned the nose of his 1929 Nash up the grade without bothering to change gears.

"They'll tell you that engine power comes out of the fuel," he said as the car began to accelerate. "But I'm telling you that nobody is going to take this hill on high without proper lubrication. Listen to the engine. It sounds just as it did the day it came off the showroom floor. And that's Iso-Vis oil."

He passed two other cars without effort and swung onto the level at the summit.

"Do you find the oil equally efficient summer and winter?" the reporter asked.

He nodded his head. "Weather doesn't seem to make any difference," he said. "I drove to Colorado last summer. It was 119° in the shade when I went through Salina. The average temperature for the whole trip was never below 102 and a week after leaving Kansas City I was on top of Pike's Peak in a blizzard. There never was a time on all that trip when you couldn't have put your hand on the radiator."

"How about carbon, and crankcase dilution and the other lubrication troubles?"

"If there's any carbon I don't know anything about it. I've never had to do anything with the engine. I have the oil changed regularly and it comes out as full bodied as it was when it was put in."

"Listen . . . you don't have oil trouble if you use the right oil. I drive about a thousand miles a month.

I've got 38,500 miles on this car right now and you couldn't ask any better performance. There's no limit to the life of an American car if you give it half a chance."

Mr. Corcoran's 38,500 trouble-free miles prove again what Iso-Vis has demonstrated in laboratory tests and in A. A. A. tests on the Indianapolis Speedway—Positive Lubrication Protection. Iso-Vis (a Standard Oil product) will not thin out from dilution. See the Ball and Bottle Test at Standard Oil service stations and dealers.

THIRD DAY OF RAIN FORCES THREE TWIN BILLS NEXT MONTH

By J. Roy Stockton.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Today's publicleader between the Cardinals and the Brooklyn Robins was postponed because of rain. The third successive postponement here resulted in the scheduling of three consecutive doubleheaders for the next visit of the Cardinals to Brooklyn, twin bills being set for July 26, 27 and 28. Perseverant rumors of a trade with the Phillies, involving Jimmy Wilson and Chuck Klein, were in circulation as the world champions sat around waiting for the weather to clear.

"I know of no reason for expecting any trade between the Cardinals and the Phillies," was Manager Street's reply to inquiries about the reported negotiations. However, it was generally known that the leader of the Cardinals was hopeful that an outfielder or an infielder would be added to the roster of the world champions before midnight tomorrow, when the time limit on trades, except by the waiver route, will expire. Jimmy Reese, whose left shoulder was injured in Saturday's game with the Dodgers, reported improvement today and it is likely that he will return to duty at second base tomorrow when the Cardinals will open a four-game series with the Phillies. Reese was ordered to take diathermy treatments for several days and after many hours under the lights he said the inflammation in his shoulder muscles was subsiding.

Close followers of the Cardinals were inclined to discount the rumor of a trade with the Phillies despite the fact that Flint Rhem and Eddie Delker recently were sent to Burt Shotton's team for cash. According to the rumor mongers, this was merely the opening move of a transaction that would bring Klein or Infielder Dick Bartell to the Cardinals. Cardinal followers paid little attention to the rumors because it was considered unlikely that the St. Louis club would consider seriously any transaction involving catcher Wilson, the Cardinal mainstay behind the plate.

PENNSYLVANIA CREW IN GOOD TIME TRIAL

By the Associated Press.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 14.—Pennsylvania varsity crewmen of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta, was sent over the four-mile course this morning in which Coach Callow said was satisfactory time.

The Washington University crew were expected tonight to arrive at the river from three miles and back in its morning workout, while Columbia continued on the upper reaches. Cornell and Syracuse took long paddles to the north. The Navy fleet went

ATTORNEY GOES ON TRIAL FOR IMMIGRATION CONSPIRACY

NEW YORK, June 14.—Harold Van Riper, Washington, D. C. attorney, with a branch office here, went to trial today in Federal Court under a 17-count indictment charging subornation of perjury, conspiracy and abetting of aliens in procuring and filing fraudulent papers to secure naturalization certificates. United States Attorney George Z. Medalle, in his opening statement, charged Van Riper with promoting "a huge immigration racket."

After the case was called Charles Ellis and Leo I. Levine, former clerks at Ellis Island, pleaded guilty to the indictment in which they also were named defendants. Judge Knox postponed sentence until after the close of Van Roper's trial.

GENERAL MATERIAL FIRM AND UNION MEET FOR PARLEY

Officers and Representatives of Strikers at Session in Office of Chief of Police Gerk.

Officers of the General Material Co. and representatives of striking employees met at Chief Gerk's office at Police Headquarters this afternoon in an effort to settle the strike resulting from a wage dispute.

A. C. Butterworth, president, and Karl W. Lick, general manager, represented the company; Charles Eisenring, president, and Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary, of the St. Louis Building Trades Council, presented the union side. The conference ended at 4:30 after a two-hour session. The conferees left the building without making a statement.

The meeting was arranged by Oliver T. Remmers, president of the Police Board, and Chief Gerk at conferences last night in an effort to avert further violence and to effect the withdrawal of 120 policemen from strike duty.

Not Trying to Dictate. "The Police Department is not trying to tell these people how to settle their strike, and will have no part in any arbitration, but as a matter of police duty, Chief Gerk and I felt that we should endeavor to get the disputants together for a conference in the interest of public peace," Remmers explained. "We have 120 officers, whose pay amounts to $750 a day, on strike duty, and these officers are needed elsewhere. There has been too much violence in this strike, and we are anxious to have the dispute settled."

Remmers said the union leaders asserted that the employees were locked out by the company May 16, following announcement that time and a half pay for overtime and double time for holiday work would be discontinued.

Company officers denied this, according to Remmers, stating that the engineers, laborers and chauffeurs unions called a strike after having received two weeks' notice that only the regular hourly wage scales would be paid for overtime and holiday work. The company officers intimated that they plan to shut down as soon as construction now under way is completed, unless the strike is settled, Remmers said.

Less Than 100 Men Involved. The strike, involving less than 100 union men, has been bitterly fought. The murder of Ben and Clarence Dody, father and son, in St. Louis County last Friday was attributed by police to the fact that they had taken strike-breaking jobs with the General Material Co. Twenty-five union sympathizers were arrested in one day when police charged them with throwing stones and firing ball bearings from sling-shots at strikebreakers. Later 13 strikebreakers were arrested and assault warrants were obtained against seven of them for attacks on strikers, who were beaten with pick handles.

The grand jury today voted indictments charging six men with assault to kill in connection with attacks on union men who were beaten with pick handles during the strike.

The defendants are Lee McDaniel, Joseph Pullman, Jack Thompson, son, Charles Williams, Clyde Brophy and Morris Hook. The indictments replace temporary warrants under which the men were arrested last Tuesday.

The latest disturbance was reported shortly before noon yesterday when Stanton and Richard Nickens, brothers, living at 816 Warren street, were beaten by a group of men at Natural Bridge avenue and Kingshighway, after they left the General Material plant at 5817 Natural Bridge. The brothers, electricians, are reported by police to have worked for the company since the strike was called, but were laid off yesterday. Richard Nickens, 38 years old, suffered fractures of the jaw and nose when struck by stones thrown by the assailants. His brother suffered scalp wounds. The assailants fled in two machines.

CHICAGO ATTORNEY INDICTED FOR ABETTING TAX FRAUD

Accused With Employer, Who Is Charged With Evading $448,000 Levy on Income.

CHICAGO, June 14.—W. J. Newman, wealthy head of a wrecking company, and the attorney who helped him draw up his income tax returns were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of violating the income tax laws. Newman was accused of dodging payment of $448,266 alleged to be due the United States Treasury for taxes on his income in 1926, 1927 and 1928.

Payson Tinkoff, attorney and income tax expert, was indicted on a charge of aiding and abetting Newman in the evasion of taxes. This was the first time an attorney had been linked with the principal in Federal prosecution of alleged tax dodgers here.

FAVORS PUBLICITY TO STOP RIGGING OF STOCK MARKET

Prof. Ripley of Harvard, Tells Senators Corporations Should Be Made to Report Operations.

THIS WOULD CHECK FALSE INFORMATION

Better Way Than Taxation He Thinks—Couzens Drafting Bill on Lines Suggested by Economist.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 14.—Full publicity on the operations of corporations was recommended to the Senate Banking Committee today by Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard University, to prevent stock manipulations.

Ripley, a noted economist, was called as a witness in the committee's investigation of the New York Stock Market. "When a man tries to run a business on a pool or a bear pool, he does it by disseminating false information," he said. Ripley recommended that all corporations engaged in interstate commerce, with assets more than a certain fixed amount be required to file current reports on earnings, depreciation and other operating facts with the Government.

Prof. Ripley said "a quarter of a billion dollars" in Krueger Toll stock was sold to the American public as an investment.

Way to Curb Speculation. "You can discourage speculation more effectively by insisting on the disclosure of the earnings and the status than by taxation," Ripley said. "If the real earnings of a business were disclosed every quarter, there would not be a bull pool and it would curb speculation." "You don't find Western Union played with as it was in Gould day because it has to disclose its earnings to the Interstate Commerce Commission."

Ripley said employees of corporations were sometimes compelled to buy the stock of the companies in which they work.

"That's one of the things that will come out in the Insull case, Chicago," he added. I have letters from employees of corporations saying they had to go along with the boys or lose my job."

"Speculation of any legitimate value?" Senator Brookhart asked. "Not very much," Ripley replied.

"If we could."

"Why not set an arbitrary limit?" the Senator asked. "If it could," Ripley agreed.

As Ripley testified, Senator Couzens disclosed that he was preparing a bill along the lines proposed by the economist.

Brookhart (Rep., Iowa), asked there had not been as much fluctuation in railroad stocks since the filed reports with the Interstate Commerce Commission. "No," Ripley replied. "They have gone where they had to go—down."

Ripley said there was "no real world" why the same rule that have been applied to railroads and telephone companies should not be applied to other corporations.

Ripley also recommended that officers of corporations be required to report publicly the number of shares they held in their own corporations, with a severe penalty evasion by the use of fictitious names.

Lesson of Kreuger Crash. "One of the best tests of the value of a stock is whether the owner is staying with it or whether it is already in lifeboats and diving the ship by radio. That's what happened in Gillette and Kreuger & Toll."

Ripley added that in the case those responsible were "true to their fiduciary responsibility."

"I don't believe there was corrupt purpose in the men placed the Kreuger & Toll securities," he said.

"They were of great integrity but unbelievable stupidity," Senator Walcott (Rep., Conn.) commented on "what the public are to invest in securities in which officers of corporations are engaged."

"Tremendous campaigns of selling recalls Rockefeller testimony."

"One of the most infamous things we see in the situation today," he replied, "is officers of corporations speculating in their own stock. The recent testimony of Percy Rockefeller before your committee in which he boldly said his chief interest was buying selling stocks."

"Yes," Walcott replied, "and man who was helping him on exchange was a specialist in stock."

Ripley sharply criticized operation of security affiliated banks.

"I would not think of putting estate in the hands of a trust company tied up with an affiliate," said.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Full publicity on the operations of corporations was recommended today by Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard University, to prevent stock manipulations.Ripley, a noted economist, was called as a surprise witness in the committee's investigation of the New York Stock Market."When a man tries to run a bull pool or bear pool, he does it by discussing false information,"he said. Ripley recommended that all corporations engaged in interstate commerce, with assets of more than a certain fixed amount,be required to file current reports on earnings, depreciation and other operating facts with the Government.Prof. Ripley said "a quarter of a billion dollars" in Krueger & Toll stock was sold to the American public as an investment."Way to curb speculation more effectively by insisting on the disclosure of the earnings and real status than by taxation," Ripley said."If the real earnings of Auburn stock were disclosed every quarter, there would not be a blind pool and it would curb speculation.""You don't find Western Union played with as it was in Gould's day because it has to disclose its earnings to the Interstate Commerce Commission."Ripley said employees of corporations were sometimes compelled to buy the stock of the companies for which they work."That's one of the things that will come out in the Insull case in Chicago," he added. I have letters from employees of corporations saying they had to go along with the boys or lose my job.""Is speculation of any legitimate value?" Senator Brookhart asked.
"Not very much," Ripley replied."If we could," Ripley replied.
"Why not set an arbitrary limitation?" the Senator asked. "If we could," Ripley agreed.As Ripley testified, Senator Couzens disclosed that he was preparing a bill along the lines proposed by the economist.Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, asked if there had not been as much speculation in railroad stocks since they were reported with the Interstate Commerce Commission. "No," Ripley replied. "They have gone where they had to go—down."Ripley said there was "no reason in the world" why the same rules that have been applied to railroads and telephone companies should not be applied to other corporations.Ripley also recommended that officers of corporations be required to report publicly the number of shares they hold in their own corporations, with a severe penalty for violation by the use of fictitious names.Lesson of Krueger Crash.
"One of the best tests of those who are looking for investments is whether those in charge of the ship are staying with it or whether they are in lifeboats and directing the ship by radio. That's what happened in Gillette and Krueger & Toll."Ripley added that in the latter case those responsible were "not true to their fiduciary responsibility.""I don't believe there was any purpose in the men who placed the Krueger & Toll securities," he said."They were of great integrity, but unbelievable stupidity," Senator Walcott (Rep.), Connecticut, commented on "what fools the public are" to invest in securities in which officers of corporations organize pools and put on
"immense campaigns of selling."Recalls Rockefeller Testimony.
"One of the most infamous things we see in the situation today," Ripley replied, "is officers of corporations speculating in their own stock."
He recalled the recent testimony of Perry Rockefeller before your committee in which he boldly stated his chief interest was buying and selling stocks."Yes," Walcott replied, "and the man who was helping him on the exchange was a specialist in the stock."Ripley sharply criticized the operation of security affiliates by banks.
"I would not think of putting an estate in the hands of a trust company tied up with an affiliate," he said.

Many Famous Writers Appeal
To Geneva Conference to Save Children from Horrors of WarKarel Capek Says Struggle Works Greater Ravages Among Children Than Among Fighting Forces.By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, June 14.—Famous writers from many lands have appealed to the general disarmament conference for arms reduction to save the children of the world from the horrors of war.The lives, the futures and the happiness of millions of children were sacrificed in the World War, these authors declare.Thomas Mann of Germany, in a letter to the conference, asks that the delegates remember the devastating effects of the last war, in which "millions of defenseless little ones were the victims.""The distress of the children during the war," he added, "is a bitter mockery of the saying, 'Suffer the Little Children to Come Unto Me.'"Those who sneer at Woodrow Wilson and the League of Nations
"are no better than the kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby," the Geneva delegates were warned by Dr.
R. Mitkovich, Jugo-Slav writer."For war means slaughter, mui-lination, arson, pillage, invasion, exile, disease and ruin," he explained."Respect for human life must be the first of all rules. And it must begin with the child, the joy of the home, the wealth of communities, the future of the nations.""When a child is outraged or done to death in time of peace, the whole nation is stirred," writes John Galsworthy, British novelist."In war time millions of children are outraged and done to death, in manner not the same, but as horrible.""On them are forced slow starvation, illness, deformity, orphanage and death from disease, gas bombs."Karel Capek of Czechoslovakia told the delegates that war works greater ravages among the children than among the fighting forces."If a regiment were to begin firing on crowds of children, humanity would be staggered," he said.
"But, in reality, every war costs us the lives of hundreds of thousands of children."Another Czech writer, Margarete Roller, informed the conference that after the World War millions of orphans in Central and Eastern Europe "lived as live the beasts, in holes in the ground, feeding on insects, grass and earth."Helene Vacaresco, Rumanian poet, employed verse to present her appeal which she put in the form of a "children's prayer." Its concluding lines are:"Let no more tears on us Nor red blood fall, but let our lot be joy
That opens like a white rose to the sun."Remember, oh, remember! ye that hold
In your so human hands the People world's peace.
Our weakness is our force, and such weak force
Is far the better half of justice."This international appeal on be-

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 14.—
Chile's Socialist junta was complete again today and new hope was extended to foreign investors.Rolando Merino, Minister of the Interior, was chosen by the junta last night to fill the place of Carlos Davila, who resigned last week.In spite of the fact that Davila's resignation was attributed to forces anxious to adopt a more drastic policy on confiscating foreign investments, Finance Minister Alfredo Lagarrigue announced nothing detrimental to any foreign interest would be done soon.The policy toward the $275,000-

United States citizens are primarily interested, would receive long study, he said. He also announced the junta's previous plan to take

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Senate today called on President Hoover to recommend to Congress specific governmental economies.This action was taken after Senator Smoot (Rep.), Utah, had announced that Senate and House conferees on the economy bill had agreed to the Hoover furlough plan and that the measure carried savings of about $130,000,000.Without a record vote and after only a few moments of discussion the Senate adopted a resolution by Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, asking President Hoover to confer with his Cabinet members and report to Congress definite ways in which Federal expenditures can be reduced.Robinson modified the resolution from the form in which he introduced it yesterday, eliminating a paragraph which stated that President Hoover had called for $150-000,000 to $200,000,000 additional economies as necessary to balance the budget.Read (Rep.), Pennsylvania, yesterday denied Hoover made such a statement.Smoot's statement was challenged by House conferees, Representative McDuffie (Dem.), Alabama, saying
"there has been no agreement on the furlough plan or any other method of decreasing the expense for salaries." Douglas (Dem.), Arizona, also said there had been no agreement.Under the Hoover plan, voted by the Senate, Government employees would be furloughed without pay for a month each year or placed on a five-day week.The House had voted instead an 11 per cent pay cut with $2500 exemptions.

New Venomous Snakes at the Zoo

"TWO of the ringhals, South African serpents, that spit poison."

EGG-EATING SNAKE
AND RINGHALS AT ZOOJumping Viper of Central America Among Recent Novel Exhibits.A second species of snake that spits poison and a snake equipped by nature for dining exclusively on eggs are among the new, rare specimens on exhibit at the reptile house.The new poison-spitters are ringhals, members of the cobra family, which can eject poison into the eyes of their enemies so that those enemies, chiefly hooded animals, will not trample them to death.The ringhals are close relatives of the spitting cobras, which inhabit plains and prairies of the Northern part of Africa, while the ringhals are found only in South Africa. Spitting cobras have been exhibited at the zoo at various times.Ringhals are dull gray-brown in color, with red belly markings, whereas the spitting cobra is black and red. The spitting cobra reaches a length of six or seven feet, while the ringhals, of which the zoo has three, rarely grow to be more than five feet in length.The egg-eating snake, which is its correct name, is a toothless, non-poisonous variety, brownish-yellow and about three foot long. It has no teeth, but has enameled points on two vertebrae ends in its throat.
When the egg being swallowed reaches the lower throat, the enam-eled vertebrae points penetrate it, the yolk and white run down the throat and then the snake ejects the emptied shell. Like the ringhals, its home is in South Africa.Another unusual exhibit is that of the timbox, or jumping viper of Central America. Very fat reptiles, from 20 to 36 inches in length, they are the only snakes able to jump off the ground. It is the ferocity of their attack that carries them into the air. R. Martin Perkins, herpetologist at the Zoo, explains. The Zoo has four timbox. They are true pit vipers.

BERLIN, June 14.—President emergency decree putting into effect a series of new financial measures, but withheld until tomorrow another decree rescinding the one by which the Brüning government disbanded and outlawed Adolf Hitler's National Socialist "storm troops."The fiscal measures impose a graduated tax starting at 1½ per cent on all persons who hold jobs; reduce the dole for the unemployed and the wounded war veterans, and eliminate all exemptions from the turnover tax.There is also a new salt tax of 6 pfennigs (1½ cents) a pound.

This tax is expected to yield 60-000,000 marks (about $14,000,000), and that on the employed $35,000-000, the latter to be applied to the unemployment dole.Cabinet Explains Action.
The Von Papen Cabinet today issued an explanation of the new measures."The situation which the Govern-

"compels the Cabinet to render the financial position of the nation and the states at least temporarily secure and to save social insurance from threatened breakdown, before putting into effect its real prothe Brüning Government proved insufficient, it was asserted, and the new government found itself obliged to go beyond them. HenceGOLDMAN BROS. OPEN EVERY

YVONNE D'ARLE BACK AS MUNY OPERA STAR

Prima Donna Returns to Forest Park Stage Singing Title Role in "Riviera Girl."

THE RIVIERA GIRL, a musical comedy by Emmerich Kalman with book by P. G. Wodehouse and Guy Bolton. Presented by the Municipal Opera Company in Forest Park with the following cast:

Yvonne D'Arle, George Houston, Leonard Ceely, Harry K. Morton, Hope Emerson, John Goldworthy, Genevieve McComick, Gladys Wharton, Guy Robertson, Victor Cammer, Barbara Newman, Marie Chapiro, Carl Randall, Marie Starnes.

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

FOR the second week of the Municipal Opera season, which began in Forest Park last night, the directors of the organization selected "The Riviera Girl," a musical comedy, which, during war years, played with considerable success. This success was not entirely repeated at last evening's revival. The book of the play, written by P. G. Wodehouse, a past master of comedy, and Guy Bolton, a playwright who went Hollywood about the time this piece was produced, is unfortunately rather plain and dated and Mr. Wodehouse's quips and jokes are of the 1917 vintage. And, while the music of Emmerich Kalman is of high order, it is not light enough to have established a popularity to carry it through the years.

However, after a somewhat dull and dragging first act, which will move more rapidly tonight and at succeeding performances, "The Riviera Girl" improved considerably. The St. Louis chorus—from the tiny girl on the end of the line who will be heard from later, to the show girls in the center, did not swing into real action until the second act began. Then in a ballet number led by Marie Starnes and placed in a very lovely setting, the youngsters began to put the play upon its feet and from then on the piece moved more swiftly and entertainingly.

Miss D'Arle Returns.

the return to the Forest Park stage of Yvonne D'Arle, a singer who delighted the Municipal Theater audiences some seven summers ago. Miss D'Arle, in the title role of the Kalman piece last night again displayed her fine voice to advantage. She is not, however, still entirely suited to girlish parts. Guy Robertson, Leonard Ceely and George Houston, in the leading male singing roles, did excellent work, too, but the songs which have been provided these popular favorites are not the sort to send the Park audiences home whistling and the success of "The Riviera Girl" must hang upon the comic antics of Harry K. Morton, Hope Emerson and Hugh Cameron. Miss Emerson, a comedienne built, upon Titanic lines, was especially funny in her rough-and-tumble clowning last night, and although new to the Municipal stage this season, she is already a prime favorite there.

The story of "The Riviera Girl" is told along fairly conventional musical comedy lines. The settings, which are very pretty, indeed, are laid in Monte Carlo, where Count Lorenz puts his foot down on a wedding between his son, Charles, and the vaudeville artist, Sylvia Vareska. John Goldworthy in the Count, who wants another title in the family and not a variety performer; Leonard Ceely is the son and Yvonne D'Arle is, of course, Sylvia. Sam Springer (Harry K. Morton), and his wife (Hope Emerson), a pair of go-getting, small town Americans are looking over the Monte Carlo gambling situation at the time and Sam evolves a plan to help out the heir to the Lorenz plate and 'scutechon. If Sylvia would marry a Count who was not too particular and then divorce him she would lift herself into Charles' set and make an acceptable bride.

Love Finds the Way.

Victor de Berry, who is none other than our old friend Guy Robertson, seems to be the man to fill the bill. He is a Count, or something, with nothing to count, and the scheme might have worked along the American double-cross schedule if he and Sylvia hadn't really fallen in love. Charles, fortunately, gets switched off on another line when he meets Claire Perrier (the lovely Barbara Newman) and since her father, played by George Houston, is a Baron, everything ends just as all musical comedies have ended since the stage turned to that type of entertainment.

A dancing number by Carl Randall and Virginia Watson, in the second act, and an acrobatic solo dance to music from another opera, by Miss Newberry in the final scene, were among the high spots of the evening, although the first honors were carried off, not by the performers, but by Watson Barratt, the scenic designer, who has provided a new plan of outdoor stage decorations with a series of huge, easily shifted pillars which are the outstanding supports of the more minor paraphernalia set in between. The third act of last night's play was unusually attractive, but the entire scenic requirements of "The Riviera Girl" test themselves most fittingly to Mr. Barratt's new idea.

The attendance last night fell below the mark set on the opening evenings a week ago, but almost 8000 persons were on hand. Next Monday night the Municipal organization will present "The Last Waltz," another operetta new to the park stage, with Charlotte Lanning back in the cast as the prima donna.

ZONTA HEAD DEFENDS WIFE'S RIGHT TO WORK

Personal Reasons Should Determine Whether She Does, Says Miss Cleveland.

Personal rather than economic reasons should decide whether both husband and wife should work, Miss Helen Cleveland, an investment specialist of Toronto, Ont., and president of Zonta International, said today at Hotel Chase.

With other officers of this organization of women executives she is preparing for its annual three-day convention which opens there Thursday. Delegates from the United States, Canada and Honolulu will attend.

"For society to say arbitrarily that a husband and wife should not both work if he is making enough money to support them is an example of fallacious reasoning," Miss Cleveland said.

No one outside of a family can know of conditions in that household, she said, while in many cases husbands and wives who work are enabled to employ servants and fulfill obligations that aid in employing others and stimulate industry.

Directors of Zonta will hold an executive session tomorrow.

as are rattlesnakes, cotton-mouths and copperheads.

Another snake new to the St. Louis collection is the black-spotted palm viper, a slender, light green, very poisonous snake. Its marking makes it difficult to distinguish in foliage. It is found in Central America.

From Malaysia, the Zoo has received two dusky pit vipers, long, slender and dull black. They are rare and are new to middle western zoological collections.

Also on exhibit are two yellow-banded tree snakes, colored in such shiny, vivid, yellow and black that they appear to be freshly lacquered, and a culebra mico, or monkey snake from Central America.

NOW SCIENCE TELLS WHY BRAN IS SO GOOD FOR HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has
"Bulk" and Vitamin B;
Also Healthful Iron

By using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, millions of people have overcome common constipation, and the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

New laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN supplies two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines, Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Further experiments prove ALL-BRAN provides twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Eat this delicious cereal and avoid pills and drugs. They cause artificial action, and often lead to harmful habits.

Try two tablespoons of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has a delicious, nut-sweet flavor. Enjoy as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in making fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GERMANY TAXES ALL JOB HOLDERS, REDUCES DOLE

Further cuts in the national budget were decided on. Additional increases in taxes would only decrease the national income, the statement said, and therefore, the cost of the administration machinery must be reduced and social insurance must be sharply limited.

"The Government has no intention of proceeding in the future," said the statement, "along the lines of opening up new sources of revenue."

To Work With Other Nations. The Government intends to put Germany's economy on a rational basis by "eliminating artificial expenditures," said the statement.

"Therefore it will work with other governments for solution of the world economic crisis. But beyond that the government considers it to be an inescapable duty, in view of the economic distress, to mobilize the economic energies within the country and to make them capable of utilizing the labor power which now lies idle."

"We will do everything possible, besides encouraging the exchange of goods between states, to lead Germany's economy gradually back to recovery by a determined policy of encouraging the domestic market; especially by measures in the field of home-steading and farm improvement and by utilizing idle labor."

The Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts says Hindenburg has been deluged with protests from wounded veterans and from workers against the new measures affecting them.

Hitler's "storm troops," 400,000 strong, were disbanded just before the Diet elections April 24. The dissolution order caused bitter protests. Hitlerites declaring its purpose was to thwart them in their preparations for the voting, from which they emerged as the strongest party in Germany.

In lifting the prohibition, the new Government of Chancellor Franz von Papen indicates the extent to which it has swung to the Right from the ministry headed by Brüning.

THREE MEN ON WAY TO PRISON HANDCUFF OFFICERS, ESCAPE

One of Convicts Surrenders After Break in Auto Near Kansas City.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—Two Reno County (Kan.) officers suddenly became the handcuffed prisoners of three men they were taking to the Kansas penitentiary at Lansing by automobile yesterday. The three, who overpowered the Deputy Sheriffs near Tonganoxie, Kan., fled in the automobile after ejecting the officers near Independence, Mo. One of the prisoners, Harold Rau, 23 years old, sentenced to 10 to 21 years for highway robbery and assault with intent to kill, surrendered to police here and said he was "an unwilling accomplice" in the break for liberty.

Paul Cunningham, Deputy Sheriff, said R. E. Barnett, 25, one of the prisoners, lurched forward and grabbed a pistol from the holster of Clyde Coffey, special Deputy Sheriff. Barnett and Rau were handcuffed to the third prisoner, Harold Johnson, 22, a Negro.

Cunningham told police here that under threat of Barnett to "blow your brains out" officers and prisoners changed roles.

With Rau driving, the automobile continued through Kansas City, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo., to a point east of Independence, Mo., where the officers, on being forced to leave the car, hurried to a farm house and spread the alarm. Rau told police he was ordered from the car near Lees Summit.

Barnett was sentenced to two to 10 years' imprisonment for second degree forgery and Johnson faced a five-year term as a parole violator.

Forcing Many Owners to Give Them Up, Humane Society Reports.

About 2500 animals are cared for each month by the Humane Society of Missouri, more than double the number aided six months ago, its president, Gerald B. O'Reilly, said today.

O'Reilly said the business depression, forcing many people to give up their pets, has been a factor in the increase. The society is conducting a campaign for funds.

UNDERTAKER SHOTS MAN WHO, HE SAYS, DREW KNIFE ON HIM

As He Was Drawn to Scene by Screams of Woman Being Killed.

A Negro, identified by police as Walter Anthony, 31 years old, 2397 Dickson street, was shot and wounded seriously at 1:30 a. m. today by Jordan Chambers, Negro undertaker and licensed watchman, who reported that Anthony attempted to attack him with a knife in front of Chambers' undertaking establishment, 2100 Franklin avenue.

Chambers said he was attracted by the screams of a woman, and found Anthony kicking Rebecca Hutt, 20, a Negro, who was lying on the sidewalk. Chambers ordered Anthony to desist. Anthony drew a knife and advanced on him, Chambers asserts. Chambers fired one shot from a revolver, the bullet passing through Anthony's right arm and entering the abdomen.

Anthony and Rebecca Hutt were taken to City Hospital No. 2. She has a skull injury, and possible internal injuries.

EXTORTIONIST IS WOUNDED

AS HE TAKES DUMMY PACKAGE

Former Railroad Engineer Shot at Detroit Says He Needed Money for Sick Wife.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 14.—Charles Schwenk of Port Huron, Mich., a former railroad engineer, was shot last night by police who charged him with attempting to extort $1000 from Clarence R. Avery, River Rouge music store owner.

Police accompanied Avery to the spot designated in threatening letters, where a dummy package was placed. Schwenk, they said, came up, took the package and started to run. After calling several times for him to halt, police fired several shots, one of which struck Schwenk in the abdomen.

Schwenk told police his wife was ill and said he was "in desperate need of money." He said he had a 17-year-old daughter living in Ohio.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Industry's position on several public problems, as prepared by the National Association of Manufacturers, is to be presented to the Platform Committee of the Republican National Convention and later to that of the Democratic party.

The statement calls for resubmission on the eighteenth amendment to constitutional conventions in each state; urges stabilization of labor by establishment of voluntary unemployment reserves either by trade associations or individual plants; condemns the "dole" as undesirable; urges the "abandonment of the hopeless experiment in the governmental control of agricultural prices, production and surplus" and asks for the prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditures.

The all-important platform—three of the leaders at Chicago convention discussing planks to be offered to the delegates. Left to right, James R. Garfield, chairman of Resolutions Committee; Simeon D. Fess, chairman of National Committee, and James Francis Burke, general counsel.

Leader of the wets, Nicholas Murray Butler of New York, who is urging the convention to come out frankly for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

All dolled up with flags and bunting—interior of the Chicago Convention Hall. Speakers' platform, in lower left hand corner.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of women's organization working for repeal; Mrs. Courtland Nichol and Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt of New York, two anti-prohibition workers attending the national convention.

Pierre du Pont, on left, talking with Maj. Curran, head of association for dry law repeal.

Bertrand H. Snell, minority leader of the House of Representatives, is one of the delegates from New York.

One of Chicago's brigade of volunteer aids to help convention visitors. Each wears the official sash shown in this picture of Mrs. W. Stephen Bailey.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, leader of Anti-saloon League and a power among the dries, in Chicago to try to stem the rising wet tide.

Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover, in Chicago to make any special reports to the White House that may be requested.

Four Missourians at the convention. Left to right, Gov. Caulfield, Dr. E. B. Clements, national committeeman; Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, and Mrs. Grace Semple Burlingham, national committeewoman.

If you ask my Opinion

Martha Carr

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am 25 years old and have been going steady with a man for two and a half years. He lives with his daughter, who has everything. He also has a good home and income. I live in a furnished room, my parents are dead and my salary barely enough to live on. I love this man and have always been true to him. I spend all my evenings with him, but he never mentions marriage.

Do you think I ought to try and forget him? And what shall I tell him? Of course, I can't mention the reason, and still I would like for him to know. I think two years and a half is long enough for this to go on.

FAITH.

The man is simply taking the line of least resistance. He probably is lazy about assuming responsibilities and may really care very much for you, but being so settled in his comfort and so very sure of you, thinks it not necessary to go farther. Certainly he is not a fine, unselfish love or he would see the need of protecting and caring for you and, moreover, would take pride in it. You will have to give him a jolt—that's settled. Whether it will have the desired effect or not is a question. At least it will show his mettle and save you from wasting your time and life.

Whether you care to or not, spruce up in your appearance, act a little droll in his company, and show that you can attract other men, whether you care to or not. As soon as you have an offer to go to a show with someone else or if you have to buttonhole somebody and walk down the street where he can see you, do that, and put on your best smile. That's the only way—you might even become interested in someone else.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I have an invitation to a church wedding. But I have no card for the house. Am I expected to send it present and if so shall I send it or just take it in person? JOANN.

An invitation to the church does not make a present obligatory. But, by all means, since the situation presupposes an acquaintance, and not a friend, send, do not take, the gift if you decide to give one.

DEAR MRS. CARR: Several times in the past five months I have been tempted to write to you and ask for advice on difficulties that confronted me. But somehow the silver lining has made its appearance each time and I have shaken off the depressed feelings. I know you say one should not encourage or stimulate self-pity.

I have a very miserable home life which to an affectionate person is bitter. But I have accepted this condition and would not describe my trouble in detail. Suicide is a coward's way, and I have never entertained the idea. I believe that suffering brings one more nobility of character than any other emotion, and self-pity only prolongs the agony. I may be wrong in my philosophy, Mrs. Carr, but I wanted to say this because this seems applicable after reading your column, the last few nights especially. SOMEBODY'S FRIEND.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I'm invited to a party in a week or two, but don't want to go because I can't dance. Mother can't afford to send me to dancing school and I know of none that do not charge. Neither do I know of anyone who could teach me, so what am I to do? Do you know of any way I could teach myself to dance? SALLY BLANE.

There are correspondence courses from which you could learn the steps and rhythm, possibly, but these cost money and do not give you practice in dancing with others. You surely have some friend who would be willing to teach you; if not, join the Girls Club which meets in Bishop Tuttle Memorial. Thirtieth and Locust streets. The monthly dues are small and you will find a nice atmosphere.

DEAR MRS. CARR: A man with whom I have been going out for eight months is to celebrate his twentieth birthday and I want to send him a nice gift. His presents have always been in good taste and rather expensive and I would like mine to be in keeping. Perhaps you could think of something he might wear and keep to remember me by.

Please let me hear as soon as possible because his birthday will soon be here. JUST GAY.

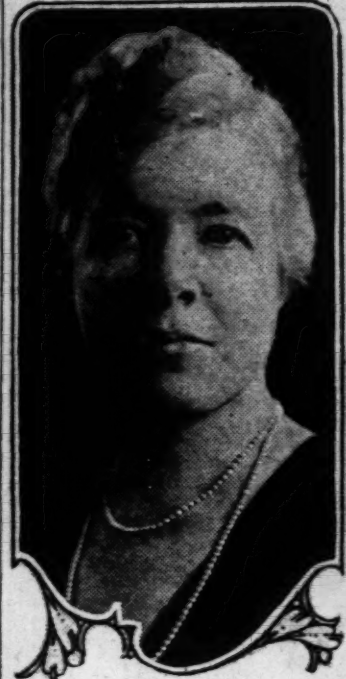

Fine linen monogrammed handkerchiefs, sterling silver belt buckle, cuff links (for dress), fountain pen and pencil set, leather things if he travels, an ostrich leather, gold-tipped billfold. If he smokes, there are any number of attractive articles you may find where smokers' equipment is sold; cigarette case or lighter, or both to match; cigarette box for his desk, a tobacco jar, if he "rolls his own." There are good things also for a man's desk.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest, but of course cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for a personal reply.

WOMEN WETS Lend TOUCH OF LIFE to a DULL SHOW

Feminine Delegates to G. O. P. Convention Have Little to Do and Nothing to Say as They Await Word From the Administration—Mrs. Sabin Creates Only Excitement With Her Demand for the Repeal of the 18th Amendment.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

MRS. GRACE SEMPLE BURLINGHAM . . . represents Missouri.

CHICAGO, June 13. As with the men delegates to the Republican national convention, so with the women, the only disturbing question is the wet plank in the platform being demanded so much more confidently than ever before. Loyalty Republican women would like to evade the troublesome issue. Occasionally one hears a dry woman admitting that something will have to be done about it, but until the Administration speaks and it hasn't spoken at this writing, that is as much as any well organized Republican woman, wet or dry, will say.

Consequently the only lively spot where women gathered at the convention opened was the headquarters of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform. At National Committee headquarters, where every state is represented by a woman selected for distinguished service to her party, all, on the surface, was calm. Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky, vice chairman, gracious, expansive, dispensing the sort of hospitality for which her Bluegrass farm is famous, declared she did not think prohibition an important issue at this time. Asked unequivocally if she was for or against it, she dismissed the question with emphasis on the affirmative. "I am FOR Hoover and Curtis."

Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the women's division of the National Committee, to whom all appeals there are directed, was very busy, chiefly with arrangements for a general meeting of all women delegates which she said would be in the nature of a tea at which there would be speeches but nothing involving special interests of women or controversial questions was anticipated.

THE next largest strictly feminine headquarters, the League of Women Voters, nonpartisan though it is, likewise is not asserting its views on prohibition, nor on enforcement, as it has in the past. It has, in the interest of expediency, reduced its usually long list of measures to four essentials, namely, reduction of Government costs, direct unemployment relief, progress in international co-operation for peace and new and better tax and tariff systems.

Miss Marguerite M. Wells of Minnesota, Mrs. James W. Morrison of Groton Connecticut, formerly of Chicago and a familiar figure at these conventions since she suffragist she used to parade and plead for women's enfranchisement, Mrs. Frank P. Hixon of Lake Forest, Ill., and Mrs. Virgil Loeb of St. Louis will go before the Resolutions Committee with these pleas. Soft pedal the prohibition question, seems to be the order that has gone out and Republican partisans are obedient to orders.

Senator Fess as chairman of the National Committee, presiding over a session on State delegation contests, pounded with his gavel and exclaimed: "There is too much order here." Then he caught himself: "Disorder, I should say." It seemed to one whose job it is to report action, if any, that he was right the first time and that unwittingly he sounded the keynote of a Republican convention, traditionally well bossed and smooth running as they are and with this one no exception to the rule. And so it remains for the repeal women to inject what little excitement there is. With the arrival of their leader, Mrs. Charles Sabin, she, at least, had something positive to say.

The Drys are frightened to death, she declared. "Suggestions on prohibition planks are springing up like mushrooms in a field, nation-wide polls, substitutes for submission and referendum, enforcement moratoriums, demands for a unified anti-prohibition program after repeal and so on. Don't let them fool you. They are playing the time. Article V of the Constitution provides for the whole business.

"Theills of the eighteenth amendment cannot be treated by poultries and ointments. They require the knife. The Constitution in Article V provides the method of wielding the knife. Moratoriums in enforcement? What else have we had for 12 years? And who is satisfied with it except fanatics, bootleggers and professional drys? As for a united program, following repeal what would you think of a fire department which demanded to see your plans for rebuilding before putting out the fire in your house. Our house is on fire. The first thing to do is to put out the blaze.

"We have one million women organized for repeal, women who are members of both parties. If both parties adopt wet planks as we hope they will, our next plan is to concentrate on congressional candidates.

"If one party plank is better than the other, what will you do?" she was asked.

"I do not promise, I do not threaten to deliver one million votes to any one party though our men associates are threatening to withhold contributions to the weaker side. What we do promise is a fight here and now on the convention floor if the administration plank is not wet enough to suit us.

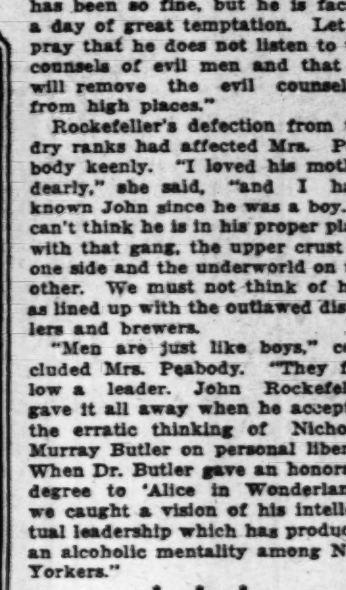

However, our first concern is with delegates. We have a woman from each State consecrating her efforts to winning over delegates from her own State. In addition to the individual appeal we are going to have a round robin mass meeting tonight at the Coliseum to be addressed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Mayor Cermack, Raymond Pitts, secretary of the men's National Council and others."

MRS. SABIN, a slender little blonde woman whose remarkable ability and vitality and dynamism are reflected in the phenomenal growth of her organization in two years' time, is accompanied from New York by Mrs. Courtland Nichol, youthful and smart looking, who will carry their plea to the Platform Committee, and Mrs. Archie Roosevelt, the late Teddy's daughter-in-law, also youthful and attractive. All three are Social Register, and many of the cohorts are recruited from that list. It is one point of appeal of women dry leaders.

Told that Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, her most formidable rival as head of the National Committee for Law Enforcement, had remarked she intended having her name removed from the Social Register because she did not like the company she was keeping there, the peppery Mrs. Sabin retorted: "Does she also intend to have her name taken out of the telephone book?"

At women's dry headquarters action thus far has been chiefly in the form of prayer meetings held at local churches, although a big so-called loyalty luncheon was held in the Armory today, with Jane Adams among the speakers. Mrs. Ella A. Boole, world president of the W. C. T. U., is here, but not being on hand at the moment, Mrs. Peabody spoke her mind upon their common cause.

"You newspaper people think it is very funny that we are holding prayer meetings," she said. "Don't you know that when the first constitutional convention was about to adjourn as a failure, Benjamin Franklin asked George Washington to lead them in the prayer that He who watches over a swallow be not unmindful of the rise of an empire? And similarly when Lincoln and the North seemed defeated, Lincoln prayed and the country was saved? Now we are praying for the man who is faced with the greatest crisis since those times. We admit that things are very black and that we of ourselves can do nothing. That is why we are holding vespers services every day during this convention. And we are going to hold two a day during the Democratic one. We trust our President. He to question her right and precedence, will sit among the elect on the speakers' platform. Mrs. Sabin, former National Committee woman from New York, resigned to take up prohibition reform in the ranks.

MISSOURI, it seems, is distinguished by having the largest representation of women in its delegation, five with votes and 31 alternates. New York is next with seven full fledged and 28 non-voting. The Missouri women are Mrs. Pearl Gehrig, Salisbury, and Mrs. John Wyeth, St. Joseph, delegates-at-large; Mrs. Lena Medcalf, Monroe City; Mrs. J. C. Turk, Mount Vernon; Mrs. J. R. Underwood, Granby, and in addition Mrs. Helen Lang Rogers of Carthage has been asked by Senator Patterson to cast his vote in his absence. Mrs. Louis Burlingham of St. Louis is national committeewoman up for re-election without opposition.

publican convention since enfranchisement and the Democratic party conventions, however, are absent or have stepped down into the ranks. Mrs. Albert G. Sims, the former Ruth Hanna McCormick, a member of Congress for Illinois four years ago and later unsuccessful aspirant to the Senate, is here as a bride and thus far active only in social affairs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who as Assistant Attorney-General in charge of prohibition enforcement, was active in party councils four years ago, is now merely a delegate from California and absorbed in her private law practice. So busy, she said, she had to commute by plane between California and the East. She, like so many other loyal party women, thought there were far more important issues for consideration than prohibition. Mrs. Bessie Parker Brueggemann, who used to be prominent in Missouri delegations, now is so occupied with her work as head of the United States Employment Compensation Commission—especially busy fighting against its extension in the wave of economy consolidation—will not be able to get away from Washington.

Dollie Gann, with nobody willing to take her place, is the only woman from New York State Committee member of Congress of New York. Mrs. Horace Lorimer, a four yearer, Mrs. Lulah T. Andrews is a former president U. S. Housing Corporation; Mrs. Jenny C. Low Hardy of Michigan, is a traveler and explorer who has circled the globe four times, crossed the Andes three times, visited other remote quarters and speaks five languages; Mrs. Agnes James Gifford is a member New York State Assembly; Mrs. Frank N. Mann of West Virginia, was a delegate to the Democratic convention in 1928 but bolted to vote for Hoover; Judge Emma Schofield is Special Justice of the First District Court of Middlesex, Mass. One woman is a unitarian minister, the Rev. Margaret B. Bernard of Massachusetts; practicing attorneys among them are Mrs. Gladys B. Stewart of Missouri, Mrs. Woban Matthews of Mississippi, Mrs. Alex Wiley of Seattle.

THEN there is Mrs. Anna W. Webster, an authority on the lumbering industry, who frequently addresses lumbermen's conventions. Mrs. Tom B. Ferguson, wife of a former Governor of Oklahoma was for nine years owner and editor of a Republican newspaper, is the original of Sabra in Edna Ferber's story of Cimarron and was called to Hollywood to direct the scenes of the pioneer printing office. Another picturesque figure, Mrs. Margaret Kent Medlar, crossed the plains in a covered wagon and is now an outstanding business woman in New Mexico. As National Committeewoman from her State she will sit on the platform. As will also Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, who is National Committeewoman from West Virginia and who is one of the thirteen who have been delegates to every convention since the passage of the nineteenth amendment.

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert inherited her position on the National Committee from her late husband, who held that position in Kentucky.

Mrs. James Wickham is the wife of the Congressional delegates from Alaska; Dr. Martha de Romen, who represents Puerto Rico is a practicing physician in San Juan; Mrs. Clara S. Johnson of Manila is the wife of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Philippines; Mrs. Rhoda Fox Graves is the only woman member of the New York Legislature for eight years; Mrs. Helena Skeels is a member of the Legislature in Vermont; Mrs. Margaret Gardiner is the wife of the Governor of Maine and Mrs. Maude Clark Gay a member of the Legislature of Maine for two terms.

Mrs. Elba M. Winslow is the second woman to serve as Alderman in New York City; Miss Katherine Parker, daughter of former Attorney-General of Massachusetts, is the president of the largest women's Republican club in the country; Miss Jessie Doe is the first Republican woman elected to the Legislature of New Hampshire, and still serving.

Mrs. Dora D. McGrath of Wyoming, has been a State Senator for four years. Mrs. Lulah T. Andrews is a former president U. S. Housing Corporation; Mrs. Jenny C. Behind the Screens

HOLLYWOOD, June 13.

IF Sid Grauman, the flamboyant showman, is serious in his remarks concerning hiring studios to parade the boulevard as a means of rejuvenating film-land's tourist appeal, he'll have little trouble correlating the necessary types.

The stars themselves may be retiring more and more to the semi-privacy of Malibu or other retreats, and evading the gaze of the boulevard's curious throngs, but there are enough "look-like-stars" qualifications to put on a grand show for the visiting firemen. Only they don't (to Anne) is the best known, and bears the closest resemblance to the Swede. Some of the girls enjoy being mistaken for Greta—they must, or they wouldn't dress that way.

There are extra girls who look like Gloria Swanson, Dolores Costello, Claudette Colbert, Madeleine, Mary Brian. Name almost any star, and a double who could pass for her, at least in the "long shot," can be found.

At a recent opening of the crowd outside the theater began shouting "Kay Francis, Kay Francis" as a tall, black-haired young woman got out of her car and went into the theater, much embarrassed because she was not Kay Francis at all, but a publicity worker. By coincidence, at the same studio where she works is a publicity man who often is mistaken for Kenneth MacKenna, Kay's husband.

THE doubles outside of picture are as numerous as the stars working in them, but a few have found employment in the studios as "stand-ins." The young man who serves for Warner Baxter looks enough like him to be his brother, and Joe E. Brown's looks like a young edition of the comedian. Sometimes you're fooled about Dick Barthelmess' "stand-in"—a stranger probably couldn't tell them apart. The "stand-in" as you doubtless know, merely takes the star's place in front of the camera during the preparations for taking a scene, when lighting and angles are being figured.

Nacio Herb Brown offered rights to his song, "Paradise," sung by Pola Negri in "A Woman Commands," to the studio for $100. The studio countered with an offer of $1500, and Brown walked away. Since then it's landed in the hit division and garnered many times the song-writer's "asking price" for himself.

If those screens stick this year, rub laundry soap along the rods they slide on and run the screen up and down a few times. It will soon settle them.

Spirits of campfire will give the sick room a more pleasant aroma.

ing at Newman's. Nights at Newman's was right. It wasn't so bad a few days were hard, nerve racking if you just made up your mind to go. Friday Julie felt almost standing didn't bother her. She going to the Golden Slipper in the pay day.

That meant that right after she left Newman's tonight she could go to Mrs. Kemper's and pay her that horrible debt which had been worrying her since she had gone to live with Mabel. It was only $4.50 the one dollar Mrs. Kemper had loaned her the 50 cents for borrowing the iron twice, and then a couple days' room rent. She would have had to pay a week in advance she had gone back, and not having had time to raise out the handkerchief linen blouse

BONUS BILL APPROVED BY HOUSE; VOTE
209 TO 176

$2,400,000,000 Money Is Provided for Payments to Ex-Soldiers—Would Be Backed by Government Bond Issue.

BEER TAX PROPOSALS
HELD OUT OF ORDER

Measure Sent to Senate
Where It Faces Strong Opposition—If It Passes Congress, President Will Veto It.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Immediate cash payment of the $2,400,000,000 soldiers' bonus certificates, demanded by 20,000 former service men bivouacked in the capitol, was approved today by the House. The vote was 209 to 176.
The bill was received by the Senate at 4:42 p. m.

Senator Thomas (Dem.) Oklahoma, immediately asked unanimous consent that the Senate take up the bonus bill at once but objection was raised and it was referred to the Finance Committee.

Opposition in Senate.
Strong opposition is expected in the Senate with a veto by President Hoover if the measure reaches the White House.

The Patman bill, passed by the House, would redeem bonus certificates at their face value in new treasury notes distributed to the veterans through the Federal Reserve Banks.

Before final approval the measure was amended to provide an actual issue of Government bonds to be used for retiring the currency of the dollar became too cheap.
Former service men packed the capitol as the vote was taken. It represented one step toward victories in their demand for the bonus legislation.

Eight Missouri representatives pledged against the bill and seven voted for it.

Those voting against the bill were: Cannon, Cochran, Loxley, Bulligan, Democrats, and Dyer, Republicans, and Niedring.

Those voting for the measure were: Barton, Dickinson, Furber, Johnson, Romjue, Shannon, and Williams, all Democrats. Ne-gan (Democrat) was not present.
A request to dispense with the reading in the House was made by Representative Ragon (Dem.), Arkansas, an advocate of the bill, after an agreement between proposers and opponents.

Ragon said he thought it fitting that, since Representative Eddie Baker, Tennessee, died while working for the bill yesterday, a debate should be ended with his remarks.

It was agreed on both sides the debate would not change.
Representative Crisp (Dem.)
Georgia, said "we all know the bill is going to pass and I believe therefore, it should pass as soon as possible."
